CAR OVERTURNS PINNING YOUTH UNDER WRECK

D. N. Nagle, Jr., Victim When Car Fails to Make Turn Near Fredericktown.

16 KILLED IN OHIO

Lutz Launches Investigation In Deaths of Cleveland Woman, Shelby Man.

Killed instantly when his automobile overturned three miles east of Fredericktown late Saturday, Daniel N. Nagle, jr., 23, of 40 Wolfe avenue, became the fourth Mansfield area traffic victim within the past week. His death brought to 16 the number of persons killed in week-end Ohio traffic accidents.

Seven others were injured in city area traffic.

Nagle's head was nearly severed from his body when the windshield of his convertible coupe fell across his neck when the car overturned. The auto capsized after he had failed to negotiate a turn. Nagle suffered a skull fracture, broken neck and a fractured jaw.

The Mansfield youth's death followed closely two other fatalities near the city. Raymond Bricker, 37, Shelby R. D. 4, was fatally injured in a collision late Saturday at the intersection of the Bowman street road and State Route 96 about 11 miles north of Mansfield.

Mrs. Hilda Greenwald, 32, Cleveland, died Friday night in General hospital of injuries received in an accident on U. S. Route 42, northeast of the city.

Richland County Prosecutor Harold Lutz announced today that he would open investigations into the Bricker and Greenwald deaths this afternoon. Lutz will meet with state highway patrolmen and Dr. Louis B. McCullough, county coroner at his office this afternoon to examine evidence gathered at the scene of both deaths.

The prosecutor is still investigating the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Anna Springer, 25, Mansfield mother killed July 5 by an auto as she stood on the sidewalk near a street intersection.

FOUR A. W. O. L.

Officials Nab Four Richland Men From Camp Shelby.

Four Richland county youths, charged with military authorities with being absent without leave from Camp Shelby, Miss., since last Wednesday night were lodged in the county jail today awaiting their return to camp by army officials.

Three of the quartet were arrested in Mansfield by Richland county sheriff's deputies, Saturday night and Sunday, while the fourth, Albert L. Kitzmiller, 22, was taken into custody Sunday morning at Crestline by Marshal R. L. Mick.

Arrested here were George Hymer, 19, 92 East Fourth street, Steve Moritz, 23, 76 Weldon avenue, and Bayne Baker, 19, Shelby R. D. 1. This was the second time that Moritz and Baker have been absent without leave in little better than a month, according to the sheriff's office.

ASK REMOVAL

America First Committee Seeks to Have Secretary Knox Ousted.

CHICAGO — (INS) — Removal from office of Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was demanded today by representatives of 118 chapters of the America First committee, who charged in a resolution that the secretary had violated his oath of office by urging that the American navy intervene in the European war.

The resolution was introduced by St. Louis Chairman Joseph Gorshaw at a committee meeting in Chicago presided over by National Chairman Gen. Robert E. Wood.

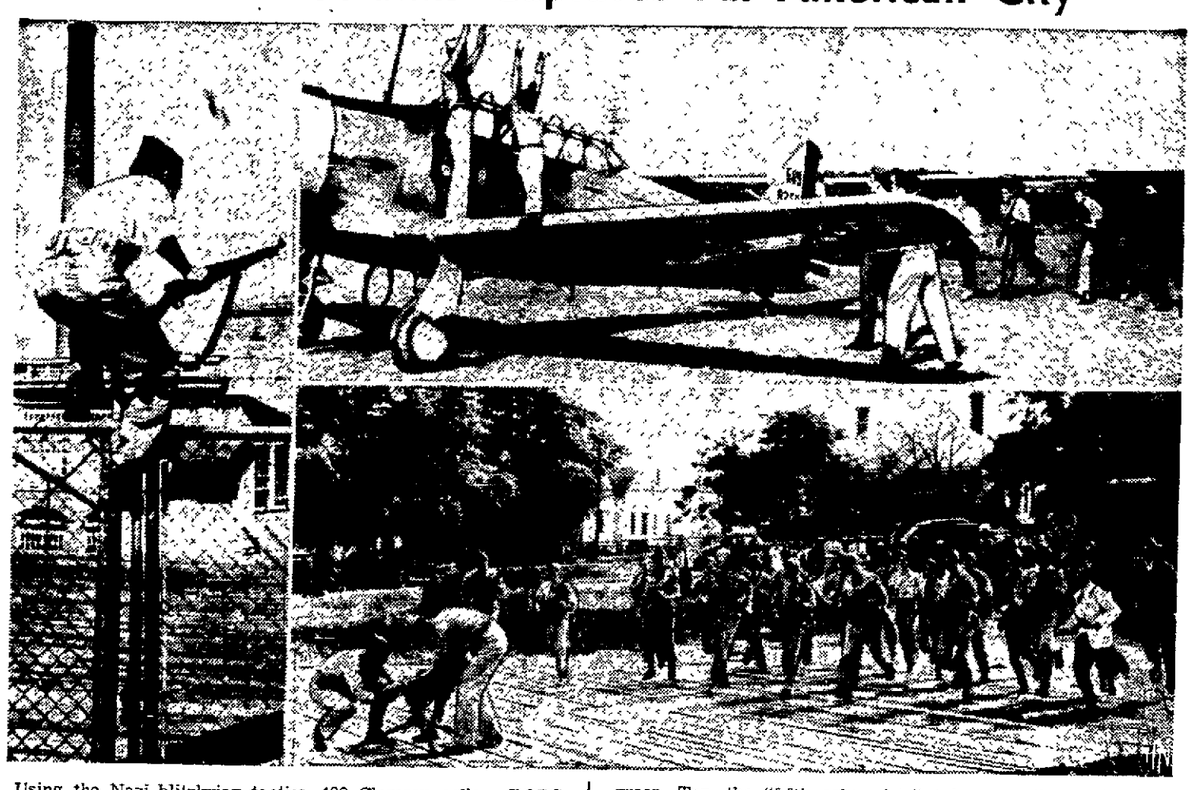
CLEVELAND —(AP)— A 35-foot fall off the last 55th Street bridge was fatal to Gus Lindstrom, 57, structural steel worker.

A 'Fifth Column' Captures An American City



Using the Nazi blitzkrieg tactics, 400 Clemson college ROTC students seize control of Anderson, S. C. The students, imitating Nazi "tourists" suddenly donned military caps and belts, pulled pistols from under their shirts and soon had the town in their grasp. Top, the "fifth columnists" take over the city's airport. Bottom, they mount a machine gun on a bridge leading into the town, thus preventing outside aid. Left, a "columnist" goes over the wire to take over an industrial plant. Maneuvers are the first of their kind held in the U. S.

REGISTRATION DEADLINE TODAY

Voters Fill Out 50 New Cards, List 250 Changes of Address For August Balloting.

A steady stream of voters appeared at the county board of elections office today to register before the deadline at 4 p. m. when registration for the August primary will close.

Approximately 250 changes of residence were noted on the registration cards and new registrations were expected to reach 50 or more, according to Philip Wolfe, clerk.

The number of registrations for the primary was considerably fewer than last year, when interest in state and national contests increased registration.

Municipal elections, especially when they are marked with comparatively few contests such as the one this year, do not draw the large registration that a state and national election does, Wolfe pointed out.

Registrations from absent voters, sent by mail, will not be honored after the 4 p. m. deadline, Wolfe said.

Absent voters, who neglected to obtain a formal registration card, will also lose their vote, as personal letters cannot be used as a substitute for the card.

RETURN BOUT

Resign Seat Both Claimed, So Weary Colleagues Can Go Home.

JEFFERSON CITY—(AP)—Intermittently throughout the Missouri legislature's longest session— it started in January—committees have heard evidence on the first district state senate election contest.

Republican Clark A. McColl and Democrat Charles O. Roberson each claimed the seat but neither occupied it. Yesterday both resigned so weary senators could go home 22 hours later than the time set for sine die adjournment.

Both are expected to run for the post again in 1942.

Plan Mass Protest on Wheat Quota Penalty

Richland Farmers, to Meet Wednesday At Courthouse; Test Suit Being Filed Today in Dayton Court.

With revolt against AAA wheat quotas spreading throughout Ohio, Richland county farmers who oppose the 49-cent penalty on wheat sold in excess of government restrictions today were called to a mass meeting to be held Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. in the Common Pleas court room at the courthouse. The call was issued by a committee composed of Earl Logan, Lee Shafer, Washington township farmers, and Albert Ammeter, Madison township.

Speaking for the group, Ammeter said all farmers of Richland and neighboring counties would be invited to discuss AAA regulations at the meeting. He said a formal organization would be set up at the session.

The mass meeting call followed by two days action by Shenandoah grange which passed a resolution condemning the wheat penalty.

Meanwhile at Dayton I. E. Baker, Montgomery county farmer, former state senator and president of the newly-organized Farmers Protective association, said today a suit testing constitutionality of the marketing restrictions being imposed on the current wheat harvest will be filed this afternoon in U. S. district court in Dayton.

If the wheat control section of the agricultural adjustment administration act is declared invalid, Baker said the legality of the entire AAA program may be threatened.

'Aluminum Dump' Fence Up Today In Central Park

Volunteer workers were to place a snow fence near the western entrance to Central park today to provide an aluminum dump into which Mansfield residents might toss old pots and pans as a warmup for the regular aluminum collection next week.

James F. Carrigan, city chairman, said that the fence would be erected this afternoon preceding the meeting of the workers at the Legion home at 4:15 p. m. The "dump" will be built close to the curb to allow motorists to throw their metal containers from their cars.

A house-to-house campaign starts next Monday. Trucks will then bring the donations of various city wards to the square daily. A mammoth celebration will be held around the pile after the final collection on Saturday, July 26.

Arrangements for the home collections were to be made at the meeting this afternoon. Aluminum salvaged in the drive will be used to build military equipment for national defense.

CIO CHIEF ILL

Moscow Reports Goering Held In Nazi Concentration Camp

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(INS)—Moscow radio allegations that Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering has been "imprisoned" for opposing the drive into Soviet Russia were laughed out of court in Berlin today."

(By United Press)

Radio Moscow said today that Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Nazi No. 2 and chief of the German air force, was in disgrace.

In a broadcast picked up in New York by the United Press listening station, it said information had been received from Stockholm that Goering had vigorously opposed the German war on Russia, that Hitler had called him a coward and had called on Field Marshal Erhard Milch to take command of the air force, and that (Continued on Page 5, Col. 3.)

NOISE BILL UP IN CLEVELAND

Mansfielders, Waiting Action, Comment Favorably on Quieter Traffic.

While Mansfielders continued to comment favorably on the decrease in traffic noise as a result of the anti-horn blowing campaign, Clevelanders presented an ordinance to their city council calling for fines for noise makers.

The Cleveland ordinance, modeled after New York City's successful law, will punish not only horn blowers but all others making noise by:

1. Operation of any radio or musical instrument with such volume as to be annoying.
2. Keeping of any animal or bird which shall disturb the comfort of any person in the vicinity.
3. Use of any vehicle out of repair or loaded in such a manner as to create unnecessary noises.
4. Blowing of any steam whistle attached to a stationary boiler (Continued on Page 5, Col. 2.)

GET RIFLES

Mansfield Guardsmen Receive Weapons; Drill Tomorrow.

Capt. Glen L. Bierly, of Company F, Mansfield unit of the Ohio State Guard, announced today that a complete ordnance of 50 rifles had been received by the company and will be used in the regular drill tomorrow at the armory.

All Ohio State Guard troops now have their rifles and are ready to start training on how to handle them, Adjutant General Whittier S. Bird, announced in Columbus today, Associated Press dispatches said.

Capt. Bierly said that the complete ordnance includes rifles, bayonets, and cartridge belts.

Physical examinations for enlisted men and persons on the waiting list will be made during the regular drill period at the armory Tuesday evening starting at 8 p. m., Capt. Bierly said.

INNOVATION

First 'Floating Church' In New Jersey Called a Success.

CULVER LAKE, N. J.—(INS)—New Jersey's first "floating church" was termed a success today. A floating pulpit in which were an altar, a portable organ, and seats for 12 choir singers was used for last night's services on Culver lake. Forty-seven rowboats, motorboats, speedboats and canoes tied together in lines served as pews.

COMMITTEE OK ON PROPERTY SEIZURE SEEN

Approval of Bill By Military Affairs Group Predicted By Chairman.

G. O. P. BUCKS PASSAGE

Would Authorize Government To Requisition Private Holdings For Defense.

BULLETIN

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today called in congressional leaders and military experts of the house and senate for a showdown discussion with Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, on his request for legislation to retain existing army units beyond a one-year term of service.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Chairman Reynolds (D-NC) today predicted immediate senate military committee approval of a bill authorizing the government to requisition private property for defense purposes, but in the senate itself stiff opposition to the measure was in prospect.

Reynolds summoned the committee to meet in order to report the legislation to the senate at noon and leaders indicated it might be taken up promptly if the committee cleared it on schedule.

Despite the fact that the bill is a modified form of requisition legislation originally sought by the war department, it was expected to kick up considerable controversy on the senate floor and Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, said Republicans generally would oppose it.

Under it the government would be empowered to requisition private property needed specifically for defense purposes. The first version sponsored by the war department would have delegated power to take over property for virtually any purpose the government desired to serve.

The fight over properly requisitioning appeared likely to develop as a senate prelude to the two-part issue now confronting congress over the use and duration (Continued on Page 5, Col. 2)

WAR Bulletins

CAIRO, Egypt—(AP)—Two ships were destroyed and another was set afire in a British air raid on a convoy outside Tripoli, Libya, the RAF Middle East communique reported today.

HELSINKI —(AP)— Finns predicted quick collapse of Russian resistance in Estonia today and expressed hope it would greatly relieve Finnish cities from frequent bombings.

CAIRO, Egypt —(AP)— Axis planes carried out another raid on the Suez canal zone overnight, the Egyptian government disclosed today, but it said only a few bombs were dropped and damage was slight. One person was killed.

ROME —(AP)— The Italian authorities today informed the American embassy that United States citizens would be allowed to leave Italy on the basis of reciprocity for the departure of Italians from the United States.

Reports From Turkey Say Government Preparing To Leave Moscow; Russia Says No Significant Changes in War As It Reaches 24th Day.

Kiev is tottering under combined air and land assault. Moscow no longer is protected from German panzer thrusts by the Stalin line and Leningrad is caught by a German frontal drive and a Finnish flank offensive, Germans asserted today.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's high command asserted today that "break through operations on the eastern front continue on schedule," and Berlin military commentators declared the 23-day-old campaign was racing to a climax with the Red armies falling apart.

Nazi panzer columns were pictured as striking deep into the U. S. S. R. toward Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev.

The German fuehrer's headquarters said Finnish troops had opened an attack on Karelia, on both sides of Lake Ladoga, in the sector closest to Leningrad.

"The main strength of the powerful Soviet army is broken," asserted DNB, the official German news agency, reporting also that Nazi blitzkrieg legions had slashed through the main Stalin line defenses "at all decisive points."

Dispatches from Ankara, Turkey, reported that Soviet government officials were preparing to move from Moscow, although the Germans are still some 300 miles from the Red capital, and that the British mission had already transferred to Gorki, 250 miles east.

By contrast, the Russians, after reporting that the 2,000-mile front was aflame with a series of gigantic new battles over the week-end, declared in this morning's communique that no major fighting took place during the night and that there had been no significant changes in the struggle in the last several hours.

In London, authoritative quarters said the Nazi drive toward Leningrad was "the most dangerous," but that Berlin claims of huge gains were regarded as "extravagant."

German military commentators declared Leningrad, "in immediate danger" with Nazi troops east of Lake Peipus and less than 150 miles from the city. Reports were heard in Helsinki that the northern Estonian city of Narva, 80 miles from Leningrad, was under German siege.

The Red army declared a strong new thrust by large motorized and mechanized forces developed Sunday but was halted and in some places repelled with severe losses in the vicinity of Pskov, 150 miles southwest of Leningrad.

CHEERS: Churchill Declares Raids On Nazis Only Beginning

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain, unshaken by ten months of German air blows, has begun hitting back with fearful might and still is only at the beginning of her growing air power, Prime Minister Churchill told thunderously cheering civil defense workers today.

The prime minister delivered virtually the same fighting message twice—first to 6,000 clamoring veterans of the defense of London in a great review in Hyde Park and later to a luncheon of the capital's organized civil defenders.

"It is time the Germans should be made to suffer in their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have twice in our lifetime let loose upon their neighbors and upon the world," the prime minister exclaimed.

"We have now intensified for the past month a systematic, scientific and methodical bombing on a large scale of German cities and industries and other military objectives.

"We believe it to be in our power to keep this process going on a steadily rising tide month after month, year after year until the Nazi regime is either extirpated by us or, better still, torn to pieces by the German people themselves. . . .

"We shall continue a remorseless discharge of high explosive upon Germany."

"You do your worst and we will do our best," Churchill addressed a remark to Hitler. "Perhaps it may be our turn soon. Perhaps it may be our turn now."

The prime minister acknowledged that when the Nazi air might first fell in force on London he suffered anxiety for its effect on morale, health and necessary services but, he said, London (Continued on Page 5, Col. 7.)

ARMISTICE: Peace In Syria Helps Bolster British Position

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain saw herself in a vastly-strengthened position in the Middle East today following the signing of an armistice with Gen. Henri Dentz, French high commissioner in Syria and Lebanon. By the undisclosed terms of the armistice, signed Saturday night at Acre, Palestine, scene of Napoleonic conflict between Britain and France, British sources said they expected to gain a bulwark for protection of the Suez canal and perhaps greater cooperation from the wavering Turks.

Now in occupation of territory adjacent to Turkey, the British were in position to send military aid in event their non-belligerent ally becomes involved in the war.

Some of the imperial and Free French troops engaged for the past five weeks in the bitter Syrian conflict, it was pointed out, will be released for duty elsewhere, and the island of Cyprus may now be bolstered by aviation bases on the mainland.

Increased Free French activity against other Vichy-held colonies was forecast in some quarters.

The armistice, announced in Cairo was described by Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, the British commander, as a "painful but necessary ceremony," in which there was no acrimony.

"These territories were, until recently, used by our main enemy to our detriment. Our late ally saw fit to oppose us in preventing this. That opposition now has come to an end," he said.

"Negotiations in which we have been engaged should assure us a bulwark of defense against the German and a well-placed position from which to deal with him."

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking for Myself.

I have been inquiring among the pretties of the various choruses about town to get their reaction to the phenomenon of the Disappearing Orchid—but so far, none of the dancing belles has been of much assistance in tracking down the answer to the question, "Whatever become of orchids and the lads who used to send them?"

This question become a matter of almost vital statistics to me when I sat in Squire Billingsley's elite emporium, known to out-of-towners as the Stork club, and realized with a start that not a single girl in the room was wearing an orchid.

Dorothy Kilgallen

Now this is nothing to cause undue talk in Joe's Bar and Grille on Sixth avenue, but in a gilded spot such as the place on East 53rd street, it becomes a situation worth looking into.

So I wafted over to Fefe's Monte Carlo Beach club to see how the other half of the carriage trade was doing, horticulturally speaking, and in intensive survey off frock-fronts over there revealed no orchids on East 54th street, either

A quick telephone call to Twenty-One established that no one wearing an orchid had passed through the iron gate within the preceding 24 hours

It was then I realized that it is exactly five and a half months since I last saw Peggy Hopkins Joyce wearing an orchid And she, as everyone knows, invented them

The other glamor girls seem to be wearing substitute blooms Ilka Chase has gone in for pink camellias. When Ann Sothern was in town she wore red camellias tied to her wrists Young Diana Barrymore has been sailing around under a light burden of gardenias, and Gertie Niesen of late has resorted to daisies.

The last girl I saw who was getting round-shouldered from carrying a slew of over-size purple orchids was Miss Jinx Falkenberg but that was on a very warm night and Jinx was also wearing a white fox coat down to her heels so probably the whole thing was a mirage and shouldn't count

So I asked the lasses backstage and they said yes they had noticed a considerable falling off of white florists' boxes both at the stage door and at home

They thought it might be the draft or just summer lethargy or hidden taxes Or maybe the fact that G Huntington Hartford has gone to California

I notice that Mr Theodore Hu sing that bon vivant has been taking in some of the pleasure places with Miss Betty Hutton This is what the sportswriters call a dead heat. She can move as fast as he can talk.

Some new kind of conversation has hit New Yorkers I'm afraid. Throughout that last hot spell, not one whimsical native tried to fry eggs on the sidewalk at Fifth avenue and 42nd street.

What are out-of-towners, to say nothing of readers of rotogravures, going to think?

I haven't seen Lucius Beebe around and about lately, but I would like to know what he is wearing these summer days Seersucker? gabardine? linen? tropical worsted? Or some esoteric fabric that renders unnecessary the mint julep and the waving of a palm leaf fan?

I was greatly disappointed in our army the other day when I read that a detachment of troops down south had been punished for whistling as they passed some young ladies who were wearing shorts on a golf course.

I mean, naturally, that I was disappointed in the officials who ordered the punishment not in the soldiers who were punished

I think things have come to a pretty pass if a soldier in the service of his country cannot whistle at a girl, or a troop of soldiers at a group of girls. I am assuming of course, that the whistling was of the spontaneous, good-natured and complimentary type often encountered in civil life as practiced by truck drivers, cabbies and the gentlemen who operate electric drills in the middle of Sixth avenue The "Oh-you-kid!" type of whistle

I will leave it up to the girls who were whistled at to say whether or not they were insulted

Let the general or the major or whoever it was who happened to be on the golf course at the time of the incident ask the belles if they were really mad when the boys whistled

If they were then I am disappointed in American womanhood

Let the general, or the major, or whoever he was remember that American women in times of war or crisis have always been eager to step in and do their bit, whether this meant knitting, rolling bandages, cutting down on the groceries, or more strenuous aid. This was true in the days of Betsy Ross, and I think it still goes

That is why I cannot imagine any girl feeling that a soldier who is being paid $21 a month to train work drill tote a gun march and perhaps die for his country ought to be sent to the guardhouse or on a 150 mile hike because he whistled admiringly at her on a hot summer afternoon near the end of a long hard march

Only the general or the major or whoever he was would think of that

The answer perhaps is that the major or the general was not marching that day He was on the golf course

DEFENSE BOARD SEEKS TO OPEN STRUCK PLANTS

Conciliators Ask Auto Parts Strikers to Resume Work During Mediation.

(By Associated Press)

The defense mediation board sought today to have strikers resume production at the Sealed Power corporation in Muskegon, Mich, which makes parts for automobile and engine companies working on defense orders.

AFL's United Automobile Workers walked out after failing to obtain demanded wage increases and a union shop The mediation board began an inquiry into the dispute and asked the workers to get back on the job in the meanwhile.

The board persuaded members of a CIO shipyard union at the Federal Shipbuilding corporation in Kearny, N J, to defer a strike which had been called to support demands for a union shop and paid vacations

A conciliator from the labor department undertook to settle a strike of 60 AFL building workers at a $2,500,000 naval ammunition dump project in San Diego, Calif. Union members walked out after asserting the contracting company had breached an agreement on working conditions

At St Louis the week-end brought settlement of an AFL jurisdictional dispute between the carpenters' district council and the International Association of Machinists The conflict had caused delays and work stoppages in defense industries

The agreement provided that an equal number of machinists and carpenters shall be employed on each job of installing and maintaining machinery and that there shall be no strikes

REJECT RED PROBE

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Concluding sessions of the National Maritime union began today after 350 CIO delegates meeting in their third biennial convention accepted the resignation of Joseph J Dovle waiter aboard the S S Ancon who previously had introduced a resolution to investigate Communism in the NMU

Dolves resolution was overwhelmingly defeated and when counter charges were placed against him of activity inimicable to the best interests of the union the Ancon delegate resigned saying a trial would be a farce '

Doyle left for New York last night He declared he planned to board the Ancon plying between New York and Panama and that he intended to keep his job with government help even though the ship was manned entirely by NMU members

Joseph Curran NMU president indicated the government may assure Doyle his position but said it is 'possible that union men just will not work with that type of fellow ' He specifically declared the union contemplated calling no strike

POLICE GUARD POWER PLANTS

Officers Posted at Louisiana Stations After Explosion of Transformer.

(By United Press)

BATON ROUGE, La. — Police guarded transformer stations of the Gulf States Utilities company today to prevent a recurrence of a power stoppage blamed on sabotage which blacked out parts of the state capital and 10 other communities Saturday night

The company offered $1,000 reward for evidence against persons who removed a fuse from a transformer, at nearby Prairie, permitting oil to drain from the apparatus and causing it to explode They said the explosion was "definitely an act of sabotage"

Barbed wire was found across power lines at two places. The transformer explosion and the short circuits on the lines caused power failures ranging from 20 minutes in the Baton Rouge business section and the Louisiana State university campus to two hours in nearby communities.

Defense industries located north of the city were not affected by the stoppage.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) struck against the company four days ago, seeking union recognition O. A Walker, union representative, said all union members had remained in the city under police supervision and could not have been responsible for the blackout

Negotiations between the company and the union ended several days ago when Bryce Holcombe, federal labor conciliator, said the company refused to accept his recommendations. Company officials said they had offered to submit the dispute to the defense mediation board.

ORGANIZER OF FIRST PRINTERS' UNION IN MANSFIELD SUCCUMBS

T A Harbaugh, retired printer, died early this morning at his home, 242 Rowland avenue, following a long illness. He was 82

He organized the first printers' union in Mansfield in 1901 and was honored for it in 1932 when delegates from all over Ohio gathered in Mansfield for their Typographical union convention

A printer since he was 13, Mr. Harbaugh in 1901 became part owner of the Harbaugh-Lindeman Printing company From that position he became interested in the printers' unions and formed the first Mansfield Typographical union soon after.

Combing both Mansfield and Richland county for members, he acquired the quota of seven and became the first president

Coming to Mansfield when he was two years old Mr Harbaugh lived here for the rest of his life, working as a printer for 58 years before retiring in 1921.

Surviving are four sons, Frank B., Raymond T, and Russel L of Mansfield and Fred B. of Santa Anna, Calif.; four daughters, Mrs. Hazel Gross, Mrs. William Beattie, Mrs. J. A. McDermid and Mrs. Clayton Noel of Mansfield; 14 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

GIRL DRINKS POISON, DIES

Former Milwaukee Office Worker Succumbs In Chicago.

CHICAGO —(UP)— Death today sealed the secret of Dorothy Powell, pretty white-collar girl, who swallowed a poisonous drink because she expected to die soon

Miss Powell, 24, former Milwaukee office worker and amateur aviatrix, died Sunday without disclosing the malady she believed would kill her.

Authorities believed, however, that thwarted love rather than an incurable disease was responsible for her act

Miss Powell wrote a note addressed to "Dear Don" before she took the poison in a Chicago hotel room last Thursday. It professed her love for "Don" and said physicians had warned her of impending death She said she never revealed her fatal illness because she wanted 'fun and excitement"

Columbus Stunt Flier Fails to Bring Ship Out of Spin.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—When the light monoplane in which he was stunting at a Price Field air show failed to come out of a spin at 300 feet and crashed yesterday afternoon, Laverne C Marsh, 35-year-old Columbus motorcycle policeman and amateur flier, was fatally injured

About 500 persons were watching when he put his plane into a spin at about 2 000 feet and spiraled downward At 300 feet he attempted to level out, but apparently lost control He cut his ignition switch before the crash so the plane did not burn.

Marsh was alive when taken from the demolished plane, but died two hours later in Mercy hospital

M. Milo Altman, who left yesterday for his station at Moffett field, Calif., is a mighty lucky soldier. Friday, he reported to Mansfield police that $557 worth of clothing and personal articles had been stolen from his automobile as it was parked on Walnut street. Included in his loss was a camera, a suit, coat, $357 worth of travelers' checks and other items. Saturday he reported to police that a friend had found his car unlocked and fearing that the articles would be stolen had removed them for safety.

LEFT BEHIND

Expelled Nazi Counsels Fail In Attempt to Halt Liner.

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — A Japanese liner with a polite but determined captain ploughed westward today without Fritz Wiedemann and Dr Hans Borchers, expelled German consuls general who missed the boat on purpose then spent 12 hectic hours trying to catch it.

The two top-ranking Nazis refused to board the NYK liner Yawata Maru with their staffs and families yesterday, fearing that without a British guarantee of safe conduct across the Pacific they would be risking seizure at sea.

Two hours or so after the Yawata Maru sailed, word came from the British embassy in Washington that the Nazis would not be molested en route

Wiedemann radioed the captain asking that the Yawata turn about and come back for them at the German government's expense.

But the Japanese master replied he was sorry, but "we are unable to accept request to return"

Neighbors identified the animal as an opossum. The vanishing babies had been popping in and out of the marsupial sack.

SENATORS SAY ICELAND LAST THEY'LL ALLOW

Bi-Partisan Group Declare They're Prepared to Oppose Future Moves.

(By International News Service

WASHINGTON — Adopting slogan of "Iceland and no further," a bipartisan group of influential senators today gave notice that they would condemn establishment of any new American military bases outside the western hemisphere.

Sen Charles L. McNary of Oregon, senate Republican leader joined with Senators George (D Ga.), chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and Reynolds (D, N C), chairman of the senate military affairs committee, in opposition to further occupation of foreign territory outside the western hemisphere.

The three leading senators agreed in interviews that so far as the present emergency is concerned any amplification of the precendent established in the occupation of Iceland might throw this country into actual combat with Germany.

Their opposition to further U. S occupation of nations outside the new world came as Rep. Tinkham (R. Mass), member of the non intervention bloc, declared that the the Island move shows that President Roosevelt has decided in favor of war.

McNary said he thought that "the occupation of Iceland would satisfy all the strategic factor the president should have in mind," adding, "in my opinion, the present conditions would not justify expansion of the program"

Warning that the administration should refrain from establishing additional bases unless it is prepared to declare war, Reynolds declared·

'I am absolutely against establishing any bases beyond the western hemisphere I'm against them whether they be in the Azores, Canary Islands, Dakar or Liberia

"I think we should either confine our activities to the western hemisphere or declare war"

George, who led the fight in the senate for the lease-lend act, said that "the reasons for occupation of Iceland are pretty well understood," but that he sees nothing in recent foreign developments to warrant expansion

Tinkham, bitter foe of the administration's foreign policy charged that Mr. Roosevelt promised Britain before outbreak of war that the American fleet would be "pooled" with the British for joint action in event of war, and accused him of keeping this promise and "shamelessly" repudiating the one to keep America out of the conflict.

Fred J. Fisher, 63, Automotive Body Pioneer Succumbs

DETROIT—(INS)—Fred J. Fisher, 63, founder and first president of the Fisher Body company and multi-millionaire director of 15 corporations, died early today at Ford hospital

Fisher entered the hospital several months ago, suffering from a digestive ailment Hospital authorities said he died at 4 10 a m.

Born in Sandusky, O, Fisher and his brothers ultimately came to Detroit where they started the Fisher Body company with a capitalization of $50,000 in 1908. In the ensuing year they saw their business swell to one boasting 500,000 shares and a valuation of $40,000,000. In 1921 the General Motors Corporation acquired a 60 per cent interest in the company, reportedly paying $27,000,000

By 1934 Fisher had retired from business activity which included a directorship on the GM board He still retained an official position with 15 other corporations, among them the Postal Telegraph company, Vickers, Inc, Michigan Central Railway, and Michigan Bell Telephone company.

Since his retirement Fisher and his wife, the former Burtha Meyer, of Norwalk, O, traveled extensively, maintaining homes in New York, Florida, California and Detroit

HOLLYWOOD — "Blossom in the Dust" Screenplay by Anita Loos from story by Ralph Wheelright Directed by Mervyn LeRoy. Principals Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon Felix Bressart, Marsha Hunt Fay Holden Samuel S Hinds, Kathleen Howard.

This is the moving biography of a woman who still lives and carries on her work in Fort Worth, Tex—Mrs Edna Gladney, worker for foundlings and orphans

The story opens at the young Edna's well-to-do home in Wisconsin, where she meets the bold young man from Texas who a year later is to make her his wife There is in the household, a beloved foster-sister (Marsha Hunt) who takes her own life on the discovery that by standards of the day, she is an outcast —an 'illegitimate' child Edna never forgets this tragedy.

In Texas the Gladneys prosper A son is born Knowing that she can never become a mother again Edna is stunned by the loss of the boy and for a time turns against her husband's efforts to interest her in adopting a child But little by little the pattern of her life is shaped first it is a day nursery she operates for working mothers and then when fortunes change and they are struggling again in Fouth Worth a home for the care and intelligent placement of waifs She wages a continual fight for funds along with a battle against bigotry which culminates in her fight in the state legislature to save children from being branded as 'illegitimate' She carries on after her husband's death, wins her final victory over self by giving up one particular child she had planned to keep as her own

'Blossoms' is a leisurely tale, told and acted with fine restraint Miss Garson delivers a glowing performance her beauty given new fullness by the color camera Pidgeon the husband is great

EVEN KEEL CONTINUED BY MARKET

Conflicting War Claims Keep Traders Puzzled and Uninspired.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market generally maintained an even keel today but that was about all that could be said for it. Dealings, quiet at the start, slowed further near the second hour.

Wall Street was unable to find much inspiration in the war news as German-Russian claims seemed to grow more conflicting daily.

Some market encouragement was derived from the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that "mild hysteria which developed last week on the part of many civilian steel users is in large measure unjustified."

The situation of the private consumers, the review added, should become better as various adjustments are made.

Holders of shipbuilding shares were pleased with figures of the American bureau of shipping disclosing 40 new vessels of 326,789 gross tons were completed in the first half of 1941, an increase of nearly 70 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

The smoke of slower-burning Camels contains
28% LESS NICOTINE
than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—less than any of them—according to independent scientific tests of the smoke itself

• The name is Dorothy Van Nuys. The place—California's popular Santa Barbara. The cigarette—America's favorite—C-A-M-E-L!

SHE SWIMS...she rides...she's typically modern in her zest for the active life. Typically modern, too, in wanting to know the scientific facts about the cigarette she smokes. In choosing Camels, Dorothy Van Nuys enjoys the scientific assurance of a slower-burning cigarette. That means more coolness, freedom from the harsh, irritating qualities of excess heat...extra mildness. And she knows, from independent laboratory reports, that in the smoke of extra-mild Camels, there is less nicotine. {See above, right.}

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina

"I NEVER REALIZED, until I changed to Camels, that a cigarette could be so milder and yet have all that wonderful flavor," adds Miss Van Nuys from the pool's edge (above). Yes, no matter how much you smoke, Camels always hit the spot—and they're extra mild with less nicotine in the smoke.

CAMEL
THE CIGARETTE OF COSTLIER TOBACCOS

YES, DOROTHY VAN NUYS, and the important point is: Camel's extra coolness—and other Camel advantages are in the smoke. After all, it's the smoke you smoke. AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, JULY 14, 1941.

Always allow time to rest up after a vacation.

After all, the habitual horn-honker may not be entirely to blame—he probably started several generations back.

As one writer says, you seem to know as much about the war by thinking of it just a little as you do by devoting all your attention to it.

Richland County's Traffic Deaths

ALL of Richland county may be regarded as so definitely a part of the Mansfield community that this county's increase in traffic death toll can fairly be considered a local problem.

With 17 deaths thus far recorded in 1941, as compared with 10 during the same period last year, the need for less speed and more careful driving is forcefully impressed on all thoughtful persons.

Excessive speed, disregard for stop signs on rural roads entering main highways, and passing at dangerous places, are among the most frequent causes of collisions which result in injuries, deaths and damage to cars—to say nothing of liability claims against motorists upon whom blame rests.

Habits of carefulness in driving are so much a matter of individual training and watchfulness that there appears to be no way—except through law enforcement and continued education—to make safe drivers out of persons who are habitually reckless, thoughtless and discourteous. These three elements go far toward accounting for the bad driving practices on city streets as well as on rural highways and roads, and a check-up of major and minor "accidents" reveals that most of them would have been avoidable if reasonable driving care had been exercised by all parties involved.

Work of the state highway patrol has been effective in cutting down speed of some drivers outside of municipalities, and in bringing about better observance of stop signs on secondary roads, but it is impossible for a limited number of highway patrolmen to witness all such infractions of the law or to arrest all violators.

More voluntary observance of traffic regulations, and public co-operation in reporting cases of reckless and dangerous driving by habitual offenders, may be at least temporarily helpful in reducing the number of collisions and deaths in this vicinity.

One thing that should be assured is that there will be thorough official investigation of every fatal or serious accident, whether inside or outside of a municipality.

Stock Market Livening Up

THE STOCK MARKET, which has been strangely slow to react to developments that formerly would have increased trading, has begun to have "million-share" days. Industrial production has been high. Wholesale prices have risen. The average yield on common stocks in 1940 was the highest in eight years. First-quarter earnings of 357 companies whose shares are listed were 19 per cent above a year ago.

Despite all those factors trading remained slow. The volume last month was lower than for any June in 29 years. The sad lesson of the last speculative boom-and-bust were in people's minds. So, too, was the knowledge that war losses in the long run would probably be greater than war profits.

That the market has begun to shake off its long lethargy may be chiefly attributed to the continued steady advance of industry and prices plus the outbreak of war between Germany and Russia. Many Americans, though trying to avoid wishful thinking, nevertheless believe that the beginning of the end for Hitlerism lies in the Nazi advance into Russia.

A million-share day doesn't mean the end of all economic worries or the sure approach of peace and prosperity. It was probably inevitable in the presence of other developments. But it may be a good thing if it doesn't go on at too swift a pace to too high a point.

Health Essential To Defense

THE national defense program requires individual stamina, not alone of the men in uniform, but also of the men back of the lines who provide necessary equipment and supplies. American industry is safeguarding the health of its millions of workers through steadily expanding plant health programs, as a survey of industrial health practices conducted by the National Association of Manufacturers discloses.

More than 2,000 companies replied to the survey, directed by the noted author and medical consultant, Dr. Victor G. Heiser. The following salient facts were established by the returns:

1. Industrial health programs—long effective in one form or another in most large American companies—are being increasingly developed in the smaller plants of the nation.

2. These programs have not only brought about reductions in accidents, occupational diseases, absences, etc.; in an overwhelming majority of cases, they have effected net savings for the companies concerned.

3. The health programs have brought about improved labor relations—partly, perhaps, because physical examinations have "put round pegs in round holes"—placed men in jobs to which they are physically geared.

This comprehensive survey on industrial health practices yields a fund of valuable new information that will aid all industry and the nation as a whole. Americans can take comfort in the fact that, just at this time when extraordinary physical demands are being made upon industry in connection with defense, industry has reached its highest pitch in the field of health practices and gives every evidence of continuing to move ahead.

Walked a Mile, Now Ride a Block

BOYS who regard themselves as he-men may be taken down a peg by the remarks of Grover Cleveland Alexander, famous baseball pitcher. He finds them less hardy than in the old days.

"When I was a kid," he says, "if a fellow wanted to get somewhere he either walked or rode a horse. Now the kids jump into a car and ride a block or two to buy a package of cigarets. Naturally they get softer."

They're not all like that. But there's probably enough truth in the charge to make it stick, in spite of all the wholesome boy scout and other activities.

Here's How Secret 'Leaked Out'

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — The British know exactly how Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, got his advance information about the protectorate over Iceland being established by the United States government. It was no trick to find out. Anybody with long ears around the Washington financial district could have learned it.

The "leak" was through a contractor who had been given some construction work to do in Iceland by the government. Apparently he was placed under no restrictions whatever as to what he could say.

WHY he talked, apparently without caring who heard him, is also interesting. He was more than a little worried over the notion that his men would be on the job up there and the Nazis might come! He had NOT been told that the navy or army or marines would be sent there in force. He had merely been given this contract.

So when he met old friends he asked them what in the dickens they thought of a government which would make a contract like this without taking adequate measures to protect the workers! A friend of Senator Wheeler happens to be a close friend of this man, who is connected with one of the big contracting firms of the country.

As soon as he told Senator Wheeler what the contractor was worrying about it did not take the senator long to put two and two together. So within minutes he was telling the press what this new move the administration was planning without taking the public into its confidence.

Incidentally, the administration is delighted with the public reaction to the Iceland move. The president was convinced that his own feeling about how the people would respond had been justified.

This was very important to FDR at the moment because he was very much irritated by the various polls showing the people to be against war. He complained to the newspaper men that the polls were not fair. They asked people whether they favored war, and of course nobody favors war.

THE PRESIDENT did not carry the thought through, on this particular occasion, but his views are well known on this whole situation. He holds that he also is against war, but that if you are certain a bully is going to pick a fight with you later, it might turn out to be good strategy to hit him while he was occupied with something else — particularly while some of your friends, or, perhaps more accurately, his enemies, are still on their feet and able to help.

The irritation of the British and of the White House against Senator Wheeler is very easy to understand, but the facts are that if the Nazi agents in Washington are worth their salt they knew about the Iceland proposal before Senator Wheeler did. Lots of people do not like the present personnel of the German embassy. They are not nearly as popular as some of their predecessors in that old fashioned brick structure up on Massachusetts avenue.

But the writer has yet to hear anyone accuse them of being slow on the trigger when it comes to ferreting out information of interest to them. They do not have the contacts which German staffs in Washington had up until the present personnel took over, but they work very hard.

And this information which Senator Wheeler so easily added up was all over Washington.

Potato Meets Many Food Needs

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I NEVER feel exactly as if I were really up-to-date with what is going on in the world until I reach a city where Damon Runyon's column appears in the papers. I have just lately ensconced myself in Southern California and the excellent Los Angeles Examiner carries Mr. Runyon—so I feel better. Almost the very first article of his I read justified my confidence, because he posed the question if he could have only one food on a desert island which one would he choose, and he chose the potato.

This question may be at any time a pressing one, what with price fixing and food conservation in the offing. Everybody says the war is going to spread and with that in view I have planted a vegetable garden so that when the time comes I won't have to depend on the vagaries of food distribution and can retire to a quiet place I know up the mountain with a sackful of my own potatoes. Because I agree with Mr. Runyon and I am planting mostly potatoes.

Virtues of Potatoes.

There are several virtues of the potato which Mr. Runyon did not mention. In the first place it is all American. It was introduced into Europe by Sir Walter Raleigh, but for two hundred years the foreigners didn't appreciate it.

When it caught on it prevented more famines than Hitler could create. Literally in the prevention of famine it alone has been one of the greatest of American contributions to the relief of human suffering.

"There are no vitamin direases where the potato is cultivated," says an eminent dietetic authority. A baked potato, according to the United States Department of Agriculture (Circular 84), has Vitamin A one plus, Vitamin B two plus and Vitamin C one to two plus.

The potato contains 18% starch, 2% protein, a little fat, and as for the essential minerals iron, calcium and phosphorus. The more "waxy" the potato the more protein it has.

While nutritionists warn that potatoes are not suitable to constitute the sole diet of man, they do very well for an emergency, even a pretty long one.

Experiments With Potatoes.

In 1840 experiments were made with an exclusively potato diet in a prison in Glasgow. Ten prisoners, young men and boys, were put on six pounds of potatoes a day, and at the end of the experiment had gained considerably in weight and expressed themselves perfectly satisfied with the potatoes, and regretted going back to ordinary fare.

The potato even has roughage properties little as it may look it. A small piece eaten raw is a good cathartic. This is due to the large size and toughness of the starch granule of the potato in the raw state. When cooked this is broken up and becomes very digestible. Properly prepared potatoes are more digestible than bread.

So add digestibility to the right side of the ledger for potatoes. Even when 3½ pounds a day are consumed 92 per cent of the starch and 70 per cent of the protein are absorbed.

Not the least of the potato's virtues is the large variety of ways in which it can be cooked and served.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lewis Ready for CIO Come-Back, Has Support of Leftist Groups

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—More than one CIO leader who attended the so-called special legislative conference last week left Washington convinced that its real purpose was to trot out a trial balloon for the return of John L. Lewis as CIO president.

The political undertones of the pow-wow were as thick as molasses. Lewis' "palace guard" of left-wingers were in complete charge of all the arrangements. Prominent among those present were the heads of CIO Industrial Union Councils, many of them leftists and the backbone of Lewis' political support in the CIO.

Significantly, although the "palace guard" put on an extra crew to handle publicity for the meeting, no list of those attending was issued. Such a list would have shown a predominance of leftist elements present.

Throughout the meeting, Lewis acted like a man whose hat was in the ring. He made a speech that was purely political and slapped backs in the best campaign manner.

If Lewis is out for the presidency, it is certain that Phil Murray will be the first to make way for him. No CIO leader has any doubt that Murray would withdraw at the drop of the hat. Lewis wouldn't even have to ask him.

Two Speeches.

MURRAY also made a speech, and the contrast between his and Lewis' was startling.

Lewis delivered a rabble-rousing harangue in his heaviest Shakespearean manner. Rumbling exclamations and with basso produndo theatricals, he blasted Roosevelt for "anti-union" legislation, scorched OPM Associate Director Sidney Hillman as a "strike breaker," hit Will Davis, chairman of the Defense Mediation Board which sided with the United Miners in the recent wage dispute, and inferentially threatened the Garment Workers, Textile Workers, and Rubber Workers, which have militantly supported the president, with ouster from the CIO.

Chairman Davis has evidently joined Roosevelt and Hillman on Lewis' pet hate list. And when "Old Bushybrow" hates, he hates.

The diatribe drew a noisy ovation, led by Mike Quill, leftist head of the Transport Workers, and the "palace guard." But it also brought swift and sizzling counterblasts from J. S. Potofsky of the Garment Workers, R. J. Thomas and Richard Frankensteen of the Auto Workers, and S. H. Dalrymple of the Rubber Workers. Potofsky made Lewis back down on Hillman to the extent of explaining that he had nothing against him personally but had criticized him in the role of a public official.

Murray's speech was in a wholly different vein from Lewis'. There were no dramatics, personalities, or threats. He discussed the need for more active labor representation in defense leadership and his plan for getting it. The talk was dignified and statesman like, and was given a cordial hand. But Quill and the "palace guard" remained in their seats and did no whooping up.

Merry-Go-Round.

BROTHER of Will Davis, chairman of the Defense Mediation Board, is Owen Davis, playwright who in his youth wrote the famed melodrama, "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," containing that immortal villain's line: "Why do you fear me, Nellie?" . . . J. A. Phillips, who retires this month as head of the Order of Railroad Conductors with the title of president emeritus, will write a history of the union, second oldest in the U. S. It was organized in 1868 . . . Defense price authorities are investigating complaints from soldiers stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., that beer dealers at nearby Fayetteville have combined to boost their prices. Brewers have reported that they have not raised wholesale prices . . . Edward J. Noble, candy manufacturer and former under secretary of commerce, who bolted to Willkie last year, is back on the Roosevelt bandwagon. He is heading a Seaway for defense committee to help put the St. Lawrence defense power project through congress.

Bombers Over Berlin.

A FAIRLY accurate picture of the British bombing of Berlin has been obtained from sources inside the Nazi capital. It indicates that although not much damage has been done, the effect on the German people has been considerable.

German pilots have expressed frank amazement at the ability of British pilots to find Berlin at night, since they fly only by instruments and have to come a great deal farther than the short hop which Nazi pilots make from France to England. Of course, once the first British planes are over Berlin, Nazi searchlights turned on to combat them leave no doubt in the minds of the aviators where they are.

Berlin is ringed by what is supposed to be the greatest anti-aircraft defense in the world. However, the Germans send almost no fighter planes into the air to meet the British, and the anti-air guns have not stopped them. For a time the efforts of the gunners to find the bombers were so ineffectual that Goebbels had to issue a reminder that Germany's strength lay in offense, not defense.

The Germans have a secret device for detecting the approach of airplanes (probably similar to the British detector) and an approaching raid is known about half an hour in advance. The public does not get the raid alarm until about 15 minutes in advance. Everyone must be off the street—not so much for fear of bombs, but because of falling metal from anti-air shells. These are a hail shower whenever a raid is in progress.

Decoy Bomb Traps.

THE Nazis also have erected bomb traps to decoy British bombers away from Berlin. Just outside the city, for instance, is a forest cut through with lanes which at night might look like the Tiergarten. Fake roofs made of cloth and paper are stretched between trees, and on the ground are low blue lights to imitate a blacked out city. Looking down at night a British flier might think he was over the very center of Berlin.

Raids over Berlin have been few this summer because the nights are short, and because it is more profitable for the British to bomb the much closer industrial cities in the Ruhr or along the coast.

Note—The roof of the American embassy in Berlin is made of a fabricated semi-paper substance, so that a member of the embassy staff has to inspect it periodically during every raid. Someone is on duty day and night in the embassy.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

F. T. D. Carson City, Nev.—The principal reason that the U. S. had no definite advance information on the German declaration of war again Russia is that the state department and most other people reasoned, on the basis of their information, that Joseph Stalin would not fight. There were a few observers who predicted the Nazi-Communist war and the Associated Press carried a story from Ankara that forecast hostilities, but even those brave souls opined it would be sometime in the future—not the present. It was felt that any open conflict, no matter what its outcome, would mean the end of Stalin's regime in Russia — therefore, he would not permit the situation to come to shooting warfare, even if he had to make great concessions.

I. T., Nashville, Tenn.—Secretary of State Hull, though not seriously ill, is not in the best of health. During periods when he is indisposed, the reins of the state department are nearly always handed over completely to Undersecretary Sumner Welles. That is probably why you have seen Welles more often in the news recently than Hull.

A. F. A., Miami Beach, Fla.—The "economic warfare" machinery has not been set up simply because of a behind-the-scenes scrap over what department shall handle it. The leading contestants now are Jesse Jones (as secretary of commerce) and Cordell Hull (as secretary of state). Jones contends that it is primarily a matter of commerce and economics and therefore belongs in his department. Hull contends that any action whatever by the proposed commission would so affect our foreign policy that it would be silly to place it anywhere else than under the watchful eye of the state department.

G. L., Houston Tex.—Men selected for the army air corps must have been citizens of the United States for at least 10 years.

R. S., West Chester, Pa.—I take it all back. Lt. Col. Harold N. Gilbert is the man credited with originating the phrase, "Keep 'Em Flying." Colonel Gilbert is in the adjutant general's office and we did know, as I reported, that the phrase came from that general direction. However, a number of army officials did claim to remember that it was used in the World war, that it originated in England, that it came from the naval aviation training center at Pensacola, Fla. There seems now to be no doubt of it. Colonel Gilbert had the idea and was the first to try to promote it. His superiors took it up and gave it an official boost. There is one fly in the ointment. The phrase does not seem to be sweeping the country.

Mrs. L. S. T., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—According to Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina, who should know, there is about 1¼ cents worth of tobacco (farm price) in a 15-cent package of cigarets. The rest is processing, manufacturing, wrapping, advertising, state and federal taxes, and commissions.

K. B., Columbia, Mo.—Junior and senior medical students may apply for membership in the Medical Administrative Corps Reserve. After completing their studies, they then will be appointed medical officers in the regular medical corps reserve. The dean of your medical school will handle your application for you. Acceptance in the MACR will relieve you of being called immediately for selective service—unless, of course, you flunk out of medical school.

A Farmer's Diary

Youthful Savagery

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY NEIGHBOR had two hives of bees at the eastern side of the house and for protection at the southern end, a shrub of bridal wreath. At nearly noon, when the sun was hot, great hordes of bees went in and out. I chanced to notice two boys, perhaps 8 and 10, here beside the hives, and I knew by their actions that mischief was afoot. I was interested, and waited.

The younger boy stationed himself as sentinel at the corner — stamping his bare feet as he peered this way and that. The older disappeared around the house and presently returned, flushed and hatless through the shrubbery, with a yellow bowl of bread and milk in one hand and a large black and white cat in the other. He held it by the middle and as he crept along, the cat's nervous claws grasped at grass and sticks to stay his captor's progress. Soothingly, I heard the boy voice say, "Here Tom,—good ol' Tom," and he let him smell the milk.

Tom must have had former experience with such endearing words and suspected them of no good, for he struggled harder than ever. The boy placed the bowl of food upon the end of a narrow board and where the bees were clustered. Then he stroked and played with the cat until Tom lost his fear and suspicion.

Presently he put the cat down beside the food and the big sleek feline began to eat. When he had eaten and was daintily licking the bowl, a bee lit on the edge. Tom stuck out his paw and tried to bring it to his nose to smell, but it flew away. Well fed now, he lay down in the grass and grabbed playfully at every low-flying bee. Closer and closer they flew about, and more interested Tom—and the two boys—became. A dangerous number were, by now, zooming about him. Clownlike, he caught one in his paw and jumping gleefully, brought it up to his inquisitive nose. It stuck and stung!

Before he realized his position, the line of moving bees was on him, swarming over his back and flank and face. The two boys held their sides. The cat screamed and ran. He disappeared up the hill so fast that all anyone could see was the lightning action of his white heels kicking backward. The two boys exchanged contented glances and took the bowl back around the house.

Cruel, I thought — the urge of savagery! Yet, remembering back across the years, to when I myself was ten, I had to smile,—and I thoroughly understood.

NAZIS CLAIM SOVIET ARMIES 'FALLING APART'

Germans Say Panzers Move on Three Cities; Russia Says 'No Changes.'

captured and a gap torn in the central Stalin defense line through which panzer divisions were said to be pushing toward Moscow, less than 300 miles away.

The Russians acknowledged German forces had crossed the Dnepr river on the central front but said the Red army recaptured Rogachev, on the eastern bank, and Zhlobin, on the western bank 35 miles southeast of Bobruisk.

German military spokesmen described the Reich's army as hammering at the gates of the Ukraine capital, Kiev, after crossing the Dnestr on a wide front, and hinted the fall of the city was expected hourly.

On this front the Moscow war bulletin said only: "In the southwestern direction our troops continued operations against enemy motorized and mechanized units, resisting their advance eastward."

The picture as outlined in Berlin was one of swift disintegration of the Red army and the shattering of the Stalin line, with the war already in a decisive stage.

The Russians declared that, to the contrary, the Red air fleet still was fighting a free-for-all war with the Luftwaffe, and that Germany was hard hit by the loss of 2,300 planes, 1,000,000 men killed, wounded or captured, and 3,000 tanks destroyed. Russian losses of a quarter million men in casualties and missing, 1,900 planes and 2,200 tanks were acknowledged.

Both Moscow and London acclaimed the new Soviet-British pact against Germany. Signed Saturday at Moscow, it provided that each country should give the other assistance in the war against the Reich and that neither should negotiate or sign a separate peace.

S. A. Lozovsky, Soviet vice foreign commissar, termed it a "fraternity of arms." Semi-official British circles regarded it as an "association to carry on the war" signed between "co-belligerents" and described it as a shade short of formal alliance. The British public press, however, accepted the pact as making the nations full-fledged allies.

Britain regarded her entire position in the Middle East as strengthened by the armistice signed Saturday night at ancient Acre with Gen. Henri I. Dentz, French high commissioner and commander of the French armies in Syria and Lebanon.

Terms of the armistice were not disclosed immediately, but the British said they expected to gain a greater bulwark of defense of the Suez canal and strategic position from which to woo greater cooperation from the Turks.

French sources at Vichy, which refused to have anything to do with armistice negotiations and left Gen. Dentz on his own, said they understood he only initialed the terms and intimated Vichy might not recognize provisions of the agreement.

British bombers smashed again overnight at northwestern Germany in raids far across new trenches and defense works the British said the Germans had built along the French coast facing England despite steady pounding by the RAF. Scattered German raids were reported from East Anglia and the midlands.

Hitler's Fate Sealed, Communists Say

MOSCOW — (U.P.) — The Soviet-British agreement on mutual defense and a finish-fight against Germany, backed by the "tremendous" resources of the United States, seals the fate of Adolf Hitler, Pravda, official Communist party organ, asserted today.

While endless columns of trains carry wounded German soldiers away from the Russian front, the Royal Air Force is intensifying its destruction of western industrial centers and undermining German defense capacity, Pravda said.

All newspapers gave prominent display to photographs of the ceremony at which Premier Josef Stalin, Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov and British Ambassador Sir Stafford Cripps signed the accord. It showed them in friendly poses.

Press and radio reported a wave of mass meetings hailing the "fraternal union of democratic nations fighting a common enemy."

The man on the street displayed considerably more enthusiasm than was shown after the Soviet-German nonaggression pact. A typical comment, made by an automobile mechanic, was:

"The pact with Fascist Germany could be likened to a marriage of convenience dictated by our desire to maintain peace, but we never entertained illusions about the Nazis' real designs. On the other hand, the alliance with the democratic powers answers more fundamental aspirations to rid the world and civilization of their most perfidious foe."

of service of the 900,000 national guardsmen and selective service trainees in the army.

Reynolds said he would ask the military committee to begin hearings Wednesday on legislation advocated by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, to permit holding the men in service beyond the one year which they were called and to remove restrictions preventing their use outside the Western Hemisphere or American possessions.

General Marshall recently advised congressional leaders, it was learned, that unless selectees are held in the army more than a year, outlying defense bases cannot be adequately manned.

Opponents of the bill were as outspoken as its advocates, however, and McNary said it would encounter strong minority opposition. Talk of compromise centered chiefly upon the point of service duration and included some discussion of incentives such as special pay by which selectees would be encouraged to remain in uniform for an additional year or two without being required by law to do so.

responded with grit which has been the rock that has made Britain "unconquerable."

He forecast vehement German retaliation, but now, he said, London is ready and "London can take it."

Britain's air blows now are stronger than the Germans' and will remain so, he promised the outdoor throng, "until we have beaten down this horrible tyranny."

"The courage of Londoners under an unexampled strain," he declared, "not only enabled us to come through what many might have thought a deadly peril, but impressed itself upon every country and gained us scores of millions of friends in the United States."

He pledged anew that "we shall prosecute to the end this righteous war for freedom and the future of mankind," and said:

"We shall not turn from our purpose, but we can only achieve that purpose if we have behind us a nation sound to the core and in every fiber."

Churchill also told the free French forces of General Charles De Gaulle in a bastille day message that "the spirit of the French people will rise again . . purified and rejuvenated by what it has undergone."

"Hard stern years lie before us" Churchill wrote to the general, whose men are fighting on as Allies of the British by land, sea and air," "but the end is certain, and the end will make amends for all."

The prime minister said "many catastrophies have filled these two terrible years" since he stood in Paris July 14, 1939, and watched with emotion "a splendid parade of the French army and empire," a Bastille day demonstration in which British planes and troops were represented.

"Many states have been trampled down and cast into Nazi bondage," he said. "Millions of Frenchmen have found themselves for the time being in positions of insuperable difficulty. Some have broken under the strain and have let themselves slide into the bottomless pit of despair."

But he said, "the soul of France can never die."

Signifying the military comradeship of the free French and the British Vice Admiral Emile Muselier placed wreaths on the cenotaph in Whitehall and at the Foch Memorial in Grosvenor Gardens.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, JULY 14, 1941.

Always allow time to rest up after a vacation.

After all, the habitual horn-honker may not be entirely to blame—he probably started several generations back.

As one writer says, you seem to know as much about the war by thinking of it just a little as you do by devoting all your attention to it.

Richland County's Traffic Deaths

ALL of Richland county may be regarded as so definitely a part of the Mansfield community that this county's increase in traffic death toll can fairly be considered a local problem.

With 17 deaths thus far recorded in 1941, as compared with 10 during the same period last year, the need for less speed and more careful driving is forcefully impressed on all thoughtful persons.

Excessive speed, disregard for stop signs on rural roads entering main highways, and passing at dangerous places, are among the most frequent causes of collisions which result in injuries, deaths and damage to cars—to say nothing of liability claims against motorists upon whom blame rests.

Habits of carefulness in driving are so much a matter of individual training and watchfulness that there appears to be no way—except through law enforcement and continued education—to make safe drivers out of persons who are habitually reckless, thoughtless and discourteous. These three elements go far toward accounting for the bad driving practices on city streets as well as on rural highways and roads, and a check-up of major and minor "accidents" reveals that most of them would have been avoidable if reasonable driving care had been exercised by all parties involved.

Work of the state highway patrol has been effective in cutting down speed of some drivers outside of municipalities, and in bringing about better observance of stop signs on secondary roads, but it is impossible for a limited number of highway patrolmen to witness all such infractions of the law or to arrest all violators.

More voluntary observance of traffic regulations, and public co-operation in reporting cases of reckless and dangerous driving by habitual offenders, may be at least temporarily helpful in reducing the number of collisions and deaths in this vicinity.

One thing that should be assured is that there will be thorough official investigation of every fatal or serious accident, whether inside or outside of a municipality.

Stock Market Livening Up

THE STOCK MARKET, which has been strangely slow to react to developments that formerly would have increased trading, has begun to have "million-share" days. Industrial production has been high. Wholesale prices have risen. The average yield on common stocks in 1940 was the highest in eight years. First-quarter earnings of 357 companies whose shares are listed were 19 per cent above a year ago.

Despite all those factors trading remained slow. The volume last month was lower than for any June in 29 years. The sad lesson of the last speculative boom-and-bust were in people's minds. So, too, was the knowledge that war losses in the long run would probably be greater than war profits.

That the market has begun to shake off its long lethargy may be chiefly attributed to the continued steady advance of industry and prices plus the outbreak of war between Germany and Russia. Many Americans, though trying to avoid wishful thinking, nevertheless believe that the beginning of the end for Hitlerism lies in the Nazi advance into Russia.

A million-share day doesn't mean the end of all economic worries or the sure approach of peace and prosperity. It was probably inevitable in the presence of other developments. But it may be a good thing if it doesn't go on at too swift a pace to too high a point.

Health Essential To Defense

THE national defense program requires individual stamina, not alone of the men in uniform, but also of the men back of the lines who provide necessary equipment and supplies. American industry is safeguarding the health of its millions of workers through steadily expanding plant health programs, as a survey of industrial health practices conducted by the National Association of Manufacturers discloses.

More than 2,000 companies replied to the survey, directed by the noted author and medical consultant, Dr. Victor G. Heiser. The following salient facts were established by the returns:

1. Industrial health programs—long effective in one form or another in most large American companies—are being increasingly developed in the smaller plants of the nation.

2. These programs have not only brought about reductions in accidents, occupational diseases, absences, etc.; in an overwhelming majority of cases, they have effected net savings for the companies concerned.

3. The health programs have brought about improved labor relations—partly, perhaps, because physical examinations have "put round pegs in round holes"—placed men in jobs to which they are physically geared.

This comprehensive survey on industrial health practices yields a fund of valuable new information that will aid all industry and the nation as a whole. Americans can take comfort in the fact that, just at this time when extraordinary physical demands are being made upon industry in connection with defense, industry has reached its highest pitch in the field of health practices and gives every evidence of continuing to move ahead.

Walked a Mile, Now Ride a Block

BOYS who regard themselves as he-men may be taken down a peg by the remarks of Grover Cleveland Alexander, famous baseball pitcher. He finds them less hardy than in the old days.

"When I was a kid," he says, "if a fellow wanted to get somewhere he either walked or rode a horse. Now the kids jump into a car and ride a block or two to buy a package of cigarets. Naturally they get softer."

They're not all like that. But there's probably enough truth in the charge to make it stick, in spite of all the wholesome boy scout and other activities.

Here's How Secret 'Leaked Out'

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — The British know exactly how Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, got his advance information about the protectorate over Iceland being established by the United States government. It was no trick to find out. Anybody with long ears around the Washington financial district could have learned it.

The "leak" was through a contractor who had been given some construction work to do in Iceland by the government. Apparently he was placed under no restrictions whatever as to what he could say.

WHY he talked, apparently without caring who heard him, is also interesting. He was more than a little worried over the notion that his men would be on the job up there and the Nazis might come! He had NOT been told that the navy or army or marines would be sent there in force. He had merely been given this contract.

So when he met old friends he asked them what in the dickens they thought of a government which would make a contract like this without taking adequate measures to protect the workers! A friend of Senator Wheeler happens to be a close friend of this man, who is connected with one of the big contracting firms of the country.

As soon as he told Senator Wheeler what the contractor was worrying about it did not take the senator long to put two and two together. So within minutes he was telling the press what this new move the administration was planning without taking the public into its confidence.

Incidentally, the administration is delighted with the public reaction to the Iceland move. The president was convinced that his own feeling about how the people would respond had been justified.

This was very important to FDR at the moment because he was very much irritated by the various polls showing the people to be against war. He complained to the newspaper men that the polls were not fair. They asked people whether they favored war, and of course nobody favors war.

THE PRESIDENT did not carry the thought through, on this particular occasion, but his views are well known on this whole situation. He holds that he also is against war, but that if you are certain a bully is going to pick a fight with you later, it might turn out to be good strategy to hit him while he was occupied with something else — particularly while some of your friends, or, perhaps more accurately, his enemies, are still on their feet and able to help.

The irritation of the British and of the White House against Senator Wheeler is very easy to understand, but the facts are that if the Nazi agents in Washington are worth their salt they knew about the Iceland proposal before Senator Wheeler did. Lots of people do not like the present personnel of the German embassy. They are not nearly as popular as some of their predecessors in that old fashioned brick structure up on Massachusetts avenue.

But the writer has yet to hear anyone accuse them of being slow on the trigger when it comes to ferreting out information of interest to them. They do not have the contacts which German staffs in Washington had up until the present personnel took over, but they work very hard.

And this information which Senator Wheeler so easily added up was all over Washington.

Potato Meets Many Food Needs

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I NEVER feel exactly as if I were really up-to-date with what is going on in the world until I reach a city where Damon Runyon's column appears in the papers. I have just lately ensconced myself in Southern California and the excellent Los Angeles Examiner carries Mr. Runyon—so I feel better. Almost the very first article of his I read justified my confidence, because he posed the question if he could have only one food on a desert island which one would he choose, and he chose the potato.

This question may be at any time a pressing one, what with price fixing and food conservation in the offing. Everybody says the war is going to spread and with that in view I have planted a vegetable garden so that when the time comes I won't have to depend on the vagaries of food distribution and can retire to a quiet place I know up the mountain with a sackful of my own potatoes. Because I agree with Mr. Runyon and I am planting mostly potatoes.

Virtues of Potatoes.

There are several virtues of the potato which Mr. Runyon did not mention. In the first place it is all American. It was introduced into Europe by Sir Walter Raleigh, but for two hundred years the foreigners didn't appreciate it.

When it caught on it prevented more famines than Hitler could create. Literally in the prevention of famine it alone has been one of the greatest of American contributions to the relief of human suffering.

"There are no vitamin direases where the potato is cultivated," says an eminent dietetic authority. A baked potato, according to the United States Department of Agriculture (Circular 84), has Vitamin A one plus, Vitamin B two plus and Vitamin C one to two plus.

The potato contains 18% starch, 2% protein, a little fat, and as for the essential minerals iron, calcium and phosphorus. The more "waxy" the potato the more protein it has.

While nutritionists warn that potatoes are not suitable to constitute the sole diet of man, they do very well for an emergency, even a pretty long one.

Experiments With Potatoes.

In 1840 experiments were made with an exclusively potato diet in a prison in Glasgow. Ten prisoners, young men and boys, were put on six pounds of potatoes a day, and at the end of the experiment had gained considerably in weight and expressed themselves perfectly satisfied with the potatoes, and regretted going back to ordinary fare.

The potato even has roughage properties little as it may look it. A small piece eaten raw is a good cathartic. This is due to the large size and toughness of the starch granule of the potato in the raw state. When cooked this is broken up and becomes very digestible. Properly prepared potatoes are more digestible than bread.

So add digestibility to the right side of the ledger for potatoes. Even when 3½ pounds a day are consumed 92 per cent of the starch and 70 per cent of the protein are absorbed.

Not the least of the potato's virtues is the large variety of ways in which it can be cooked and served.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lewis Ready for CIO Come-Back, Has Support of Leftist Groups

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—More than one CIO leader who attended the so-called special legislative conference last week left Washington convinced that its real purpose was to trot out a trial balloon for the return of John L. Lewis as CIO president.

The political undertones of the pow-wow were as thick as molasses. Lewis' "palace guard" of left-wingers were in complete charge of all the arrangements. Prominent among those present were the heads of CIO Industrial Union Councils, many of them leftists and the backbone of Lewis' political support in the CIO.

Significantly, although the "palace guard" put on an extra crew to handle publicity for the meeting, no list of those attending was issued. Such a list would have shown a predominance of leftist elements present.

Throughout the meeting, Lewis acted like a man whose hat was in the ring. He made a speech that was purely political and slapped backs in the best campaign manner.

If Lewis is out for the presidency, it is certain that Phil Murray will be the first to make way for him. No CIO leader has any doubt that Murray would withdraw at the drop of the hat. Lewis wouldn't even have to ask him.

Two Speeches.

MURRAY also made a speech, and the contrast between his and Lewis' was startling.

Lewis delivered a rabble-rousing harangue in his heaviest Shakespearean manner. Rumbling exclamations and with basso produndo theatricals, he blasted Roosevelt for "anti-union" legislation, scorched OPM Associate Director Sidney Hillman as a "strike breaker," hit Will Davis, chairman of the Defense Mediation Board which sided with the United Miners in the recent wage dispute, and inferentially threatened the Garment Workers, Textile Workers, and Rubber Workers, which have militantly supported the president, with ouster from the CIO.

Chairman Davis has evidently joined Roosevelt and Hillman on Lewis' pet hate list. And when "Old Bushybrow" hates, he hates.

The diatribe drew a noisy ovation, led by Mike Quill, leftist head of the Transport Workers, and the "palace guard." But it also brought swift and sizzling counterblasts from J. S. Potofsky of the Garment Workers, R. J. Thomas and Richard Frankensteen of the Auto Workers, and S. H. Dalrymple of the Rubber Workers. Potofsky made Lewis back down on Hillman to the extent of explaining that he had nothing against him personally but had criticized him in the role of a public official.

Murray's speech was in a wholly different vein from Lewis'. There were no dramatics, personalities, or threats. He discussed the need for more active labor representation in defense leadership and his plan for getting it. The talk was dignified and statesman like, and was given a cordial hand. But Quill and the "palace guard" remained in their seats and did no whooping up.

Merry-Go-Round.

BROTHER of Will Davis, chairman of the Defense Mediation Board, is Owen Davis, playwright who in his youth wrote the famed melodrama, "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," containing that immortal villain's line: "Why do you fear me, Nellie?" . . . J. A. Phillips, who retires this month as head of the Order of Railroad Conductors with the title of president emeritus, will write a history of the union, second oldest in the U. S. It was organized in 1868 . . . Defense price authorities are investigating complaints from soldiers stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., that beer dealers at nearby Fayetteville have combined to boost their prices. Brewers have reported that they have not raised wholesale prices . . . Edward J. Noble, candy manufacturer and former under secretary of commerce, who bolted to Willkie last year, is back on the Roosevelt bandwagon. He is heading a Seaway for defense committee to help put the St. Lawrence defense power project through congress.

Bombers Over Berlin.

A FAIRLY accurate picture of the British bombing of Berlin has been obtained from sources inside the Nazi capital. It indicates that although not much damage has been done, the effect on the German people has been considerable.

German pilots have expressed frank amazement at the ability of British pilots to find Berlin at night, since they fly only by instruments and have to come a great deal farther than the short hop which Nazi pilots make from France to England. Of course, once the first British planes are over Berlin, Nazi searchlights turned on to combat them leave no doubt in the minds of the aviators where they are.

Berlin is ringed by what is supposed to be the greatest anti-aircraft defense in the world. However, the Germans send almost no fighter planes into the air to meet the British, and the anti-air guns have not stopped them. For a time the efforts of the gunners to find the bombers were so ineffectual that Goebbels had to issue a reminder that Germany's strength lay in offense, not defense.

The Germans have a secret device for detecting the approach of airplanes (probably similar to the British detector) and an approaching raid is known about half an hour in advance. The public does not get the raid alarm until about 15 minutes in advance. Everyone must be off the street—not so much for fear of bombs, but because of falling metal from anti-air shells. These are a hail shower whenever a raid is in progress.

Decoy Bomb Traps.

THE Nazis also have erected bomb traps to decoy British bombers away from Berlin. Just outside the city, for instance, is a forest cut through with lanes which at night might look like the Tiergarten. Fake roofs made of cloth and paper are stretched between trees, and on the ground are low blue lights to imitate a blacked out city. Looking down at night a British flier might think he was over the very center of Berlin.

Raids over Berlin have been few this summer because the nights are short, and because it is more profitable for the British to bomb the much closer industrial cities in the Ruhr or along the coast.

Note—The roof of the American embassy in Berlin is made of a fabricated semi-paper substance, so that a member of the embassy staff has to inspect it periodically during every raid. Someone is on duty day and night in the embassy.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

F. T. D. Carson City, Nev.—The principal reason that the U. S. had no definite advance information on the German declaration of war again Russia is that the state department and most other people reasoned, on the basis of their information, that Joseph Stalin would not fight. There were a few observers who predicted the Nazi-Communist war and the Assoiated Press carried a story from Ankara that forecast hostilities, but even those brave souls opined it would be sometime in the future —not the present. It was felt that any open conflict, no matter what its outcome, would mean the end of Stalin's regime in Russia — therefore, he would not permit the situation to come to shooting warfare, even if he had to make great concessions.

I. T., Nashville, Tenn. — Secretary of State Hull, though not seriously ill, is not in the best of health. During periods when he is indisposed, the reins of the state department are nearly always handed over completely to Undersecretary Sumner Welles. That is probably why you have seen Welles more often in the news recently than Hull.

A. F. A., Miami Beach, Fla.—The "economic warfare" machinery has not been set up simply because of a behind-the-scenes scrap over what department shall handle it. The leading contestants now are Jesse Jones (as secretary of commerce) and Cordell Hull (as secretary of state). Jones contends that it is primarily a matter of commerce and economics and therefore belongs in his department. Hull contends that any action whatever by the proposed commission would so affect our foreign policy that it would be silly to place it anywhere else than under the watchful eye of the state department.

G. L., Houston Tex. — Men selected for the army air corps must have been citizens of the United States for at least 10 years.

R. S., West Chester, Pa.—I take it all back. Lt. Col. Harold N. Gilbert is the man credited with originating the phrase, "Keep 'Em Flying." Colonel Gilbert is in the adjutant general's office and we did know, as I reported, that the phrase came from that general direction. However, a number of army officials did claim to remember that it was used in the World war, that it originated in England, that it came from the naval aviation training center at Pensacola, Fla. There seems now to be no doubt of it. Colonel Gilbert had the idea and was the first to try to promote it. His superiors took it up and gave it an official boost. There is one fly in the ointment. The phrase does not seem to be sweeping the country.

Mrs. L. S. T., Wilkes-Barre, Pa. —According to Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina, who should know, there is about 1¼ cents worth of tobacco (farm price) in a 15-cent package of cigarets. The rest is processing, manufacturing, wrapping, advertising, state and federal taxes, and commissions.

K. B., Columbia, Mo. — Junior and senior medical students may apply for membership in the Medical Administrative Corps Reserve. After completing their studies, they then will be appointed medical officers in the regular medical corps reserve. The dean of your medical school will handle your application for you. Acceptance in the MACR will relieve you of being called immediately for selective service—unless, of course, you flunk out of medical school.

A Farmer's Diary

Youthful Savagery

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY NEIGHBOR had two hives of bees at the eastern side of the house and for protection at the southern end, a shrub of bridal wreath. At nearly noon, when the sun was hot, great hordes of bees went in and out. I chanced to notice two boys, perhaps 8 and 10, here beside the hives, and I knew by their actions that mischief was afoot. I was interested, and waited.

The younger boy stationed himself as sentinel at the corner — stamping his bare feet as he peered this way and that. The older disappeared around the house and presently returned, flushed and hatless through the shrubbery, with a yellow bowl of bread and milk in one hand and a large black and white cat in the other. He held it by the middle and as he crept along, the cat's nervous claws grasped at grass and sticks to stay his captor's progress. Soothingly, I heard the boy voice say, "Here Tom,—good ol' Tom," and he let him smell the milk.

Tom must have had former experience with such endearing words and suspected them of no good, for he struggled harder than ever. The boy placed the bowl of food upon the end of a narrow board and where the bees were clustered. Then he stroked and played with the cat until Tom lost his fear and suspicion.

Presently he put the cat down beside the food and the big sleek feline began to eat. When he had eaten and was daintily licking the bowl, a bee lit on the edge. Tom stuck out his paw and tried to bring it to his nose to smell, but it flew away. Well fed now, he lay down in the grass and grabbed playfully at every low-flying bee. Closer and closer they flew about, and more interested Tom—and the two boys—became. A dangerous number were, by now, zooming about him. Clownlike, he caught one in his paw and jumping gleefully, brought it up to his inquisitive nose. It stuck and stung!

Before he realized his position, the line of moving bees was on him, swarming over his back and flank and face. The two boys held their sides. The cat screamed and ran. He disappeared up the hill so fast that all anyone could see was the lightning action of his white heels kicking backward. The two boys exchanged contented glances and took the bowl back around the house.

Cruel, I thought — the urge of savagery! Yet, remembering back across the years, to when I myself was ten, I had to smile,—and I thoroughly understood.

NAZIS CLAIM SOVIET ARMIES 'FALLING APART'

Germans Say Panzers Move on Three Cities; Russia Says 'No Changes.'

captured and a gap torn in the central Stalin defense line through which panzer divisions were said to be pushing toward Moscow, less than 300 miles away.

The Russians acknowledged German forces had crossed the Dnepr river on the central front but said the Red army recaptured Rogachev, on the eastern bank, and Zhlobin, on the western bank 35 miles southeast of Bobruisk.

German military spokesmen described the Reich's army as hammering at the gates of the Ukraine capital, Kiev, after crossing the Dnestr on a wide front, and hinted the fall of the city was expected hourly.

On this front the Moscow war bulletin said only: "In the southwestern direction our troops continued operations against enemy motorized and mechanized units, resisting their advance eastward."

The picture as outlined in Berlin was one of swift disintegration of the Red army and the shattering of the Stalin line, with the war already in a decisive stage.

The Russians declared that, to the contrary, the Red air fleet still was fighting a free-for-all war with the Luftwaffe, and that Germany was hard hit by the loss of 2,300 planes, 1,000,000 men killed, wounded or captured, and 3,000 tanks destroyed. Russian losses of a quarter million men in casualties and missing, 1,900 planes and 2,200 tanks were acknowledged.

Both Moscow and London acclaimed the new Soviet-British pact against Germany. Signed Saturday at Moscow, it provided that each country should give the other assistance in the war against the Reich and that neither should negotiate or sign a separate peace.

S. A. Lozovsky, Soviet vice foreign commissar, termed it a "fraternity of arms." Semi-official British circles regarded it as an "association to carry on the war" signed between "co-belligerents" and described it as a shade short of formal alliance. The British public press, however, accepted the pact as making the nations full-fledged allies.

Britain regarded her entire position in the Middle East as strengthened by the armistice signed Saturday night at ancient Acre with Gen. Henri L. Dentz, French high commissioner and commander of the French armies in Syria and Lebanon.

Terms of the armistice were not disclosed immediately, but the British said they expected to gain a greater bulwark of defense of the Suez canal and strategic position from which to woo greater cooperation from the Turks.

French sources at Vichy, which refused to have anything to do with armistice negotiations and left Gen. Dentz on his own, said they undersfood he only initialed the terms and intimated Vichy might not recognize provisions of the agreement.

British bombers smashed again overnight at northwestern Germany in raids far across new trenches and defense works the British said the Germans had built along the French coast facing England despite steady pounding by the RAF. Scattered German raids were reported from East Anglia and the midlands.

Hitler's Fate Sealed, Communists Say

MOSCOW — (U.P.) — The Soviet-British agreement on mutual defense and a finish-fight against Germany, backed by the "tremendous" resources of the United States, seals the fate of Adolf Hitler, Pravda, official Communist party organ, asserted today.

While endless columns of trains carry wounded German soldiers away from the Russian front, the Royal Air Force is intensifying its destruction of western industrial centers and undermining German defense capacity, Pravda said.

All newspapers gave prominent display to photographs of the ceremony at which Premier Josef Stalin, Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov and British Ambassador Sir Stafford Cripps signed the accord. It showed them in friendly poses.

Press and radio reported a wave of mass meetings hailing the "fraternal union of democratic nations fighting a common enemy."

The man on the street displayed considerably more enthusiasm than was shown after the Soviet-German nonaggression pact. A typical comment, made by an automobile mechanic, was:

"The pact with Fascist Germany could be likened to a marriage of convenience dictated by our desire to maintain peace, but we never entertained illusions about the Nazis' real designs. On the other hand, the alliance with the democratic powers answers more fundamental aspirations to rid the world and civilization of their most perfidious foe."

At bottom right, Fullback Runyan gives the old timers a preview of the uniforms to be worn by Mansfield High Tygers this fall.

COMMITTEE OK ON BILL SEEN

Approval of Property Seizure Proposal Predicted By Military Group.

of service of the 900,000 national guardsmen and selective service trainees in the army.

Reynolds said he would ask the military committee to begin hearings Wednesday on legislation advocated by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, to permit holding the men in service beyond the one year which they were called and to remove restrictions preventing their use outside the Western Hemisphere or American possessions.

General Marshall recently advised congressional leaders, it was learned, that unless selectees are held in the army more than a year, outlying defense bases cannot be adequately manned.

Opponents of the bill were as outspoken as its advocates, however, and McNary said it would encounter strong minority opposition. Talk of compromise centered chiefly upon the point of service duration and included some discussion of incentives such as special pay by which selectees would be encouraged to remain in uniform for an additional year or two without being required by law to do so.

Frank Beverstock, secretary of the Richland county auto club, today reported that his request for model ordinances from American Automobile association headquarters in Washington, D. C., had not been answered as yet. He believes that the Washington association is gathering material in New York and Memphis, Tenn.

When the models do arrive, City Councilman George Kyle will use them to draft an ordinance to be presented to the August council meeting. The ordinance says Kyle will be drawn to allow for emergency signaling, but will hit hard at unnecessary "horning in."

The young men, who enlisted for four years, are: Harold R. Bricker, 18, of 284 Remy avenue; Steven J. Kasper, 584 North Mulberry street; and Donald C. Kipner of Crestline.

MOSCOW CLAIMS GOERING HELD

Russian Radio Reports Chief of German Air Force In Concentration Camp.

Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi secret police, the Gestapo, "asked for permission to bring Goering into a concentration camp."

The Moscow radio said "Hitler on the eve of the German attack on Soviet Russia had a great discussion with Goering."

"Declaring that the German aviation, already extremely weakened during the last compaigns in the west and southeast, will not be able to stand up in the German onslaught against Russia, Goering declined every responsibility.

"Hitler called Goering a coward, said that he himself would take over the responsibility, and called on Milch . . .

"It is a fact that the name of Goering does not appear any more in the German newspapers. It is reported that Himmler has asked for permission to bring Goering into a concentration camp."

Goering and Himmler are old rivals for police power.

The Exchange Telegraph of London picked up a Moscow radio broadcast in the Dutch language which, it said, reported that Goering was already in a concentration camp.

National Broadcasting company picked up in New York this morning a French language broadcast from the Sydney, Australia, station, quoting the British Broadcasting company that Goering was already in a camp.

Goering has been little in the news for many months. On June 2 he issued a special order of the day to the air force asserting that its work in Crete proved Hitler's word that "there is no unconquerable island."

At the start of the war Hitler made Goering his official heir. Rudolf Hess, the Nazi party leader who flew to Great Britain in circumstances which still are mysterious, was made second heir.

BRITISH CHEER CHURCHILL TALK

Prime Minister Tells Them Raids on Germany 'Only the Beginning.'

responded with grit which has been the rock that has made Britain "unconquerable."

He forecast vehement German retaliation, but now, he said, London is ready and "London can take it."

Britain's air blows now are stronger than the Germans' and will remain so, he promised the outdoor throng, "until we have beaten down this horrible tyranny."

"The courage of Londoners under an unexampled strain," he declared, "not only enabled us to come through what many might have thought a deadly peril, but impressed itself upon every country and gained us scores of millions of friends in the United States."

He pledged anew that "we shall prosecute to the end this righteous war for freedom and the future of mankind," and said:

"We shall not turn from our purpose, but we can only achieve that purpose if we have behind us a nation sound to the core and in every fiber."

Churchill also told the free French forces of General Charles De Gaulle in a bastille day message that "the spirit of the French people will rise again . . . purified and rejuvenated by what it has undergone."

"Hard stern years lie before us" Churchill wrote to the general, whose men are fighting on as Allies of the British by land, sea and air," "but the end is certain, and the end will make amends for all."

The prime minister said "many catastrophies have filled these two terrible years" since he stood in Paris July 14, 1939, and watched with emotion "a splendid parade of the French army and empire," a Bastille day demonstration in which British planes and troops were represented.

"Many states have been trampled down and cast into Nazi bondage," he said. "Millions of Frenchmen have found themselves for the time being in positions of insuperable difficulty. Some have broken under the strain and have let themselves slide into the bottomless pit of despair."

But he said, "the soul of France can never die."

Signifying the military comradeship of the free French and the British Vice Admiral Emile Muselier placed wreaths on the cenotaph in Whitehall and at the Foch Memorial in Grosvenor Gardens.

LOUISE SEYBOLD WED IN FORMAL SERVICE

Miss Louise Seybold, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Seybold, South Main Street, Weds Harvey C. Lisle At St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

BEFORE an altar decorated with palms, ferns, beauty baskets of white gladioli, altar vases of asters and gladioli and two seven branch candelibra, Miss Ruth Louise Seybold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Seybold, 524 South Main street, became the bride of Harvy Clarence Lisle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Lisle, 238 Blymyer avenue. The ceremony was performed at 4 p. m. Sunday before the altar of St. Paul's Lutheran church with Rev. Herman L. Gilbert officiating.

Escorted by her father, the bride approached the altar to nuptial music played by Miss Mabel Zehner. She was attired in a formal gown of white ninon with a lace collar and long pointed sleeves. The neckline was made high in the back coming to a low point in the front. Her fingertip tulle veil was attached to a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, gardenias, swansonia and babybreath.

Miss Jean Seybold, sister of the bride, served as maid-of-honor. She wore a formal gown of yellow silk net over taffeta trimmed with blue bows and three quarter length gloves in a matching color. The coronet of flowers she wore on her head was made of yellow and blue garden flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium. Richard D. Lisle, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Marshall Seybold, Columbus, Robert Massa and Cloyd Pugh, Mansfield and Lyman Mabee, Cleveland.

Nuptial music played during and preceding the ceremony by Miss Zehner included "Ave Maria" by Schubert. "Cantilene Nuptiale" by Dubois, "Dreams" by Wagner, "Liebestraum" by Liszt, "When Thou Art Near" by Bach, "Calm As the Night" by Bohm and the traditional wedding marches. Mrs. Robert Brook, soloist, sang "All For You" by Bertrand-Brown and "I Love Thee" by Grieg.

Mrs. Seybold appeared at her daughter's wedding in a sheer rose frock with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Lisle wore a powder blue chiffon frock with rose accessories and a corsage of pink roses. A reception was held for 45 friends and relatives of the couple at the home of the bride's parents immediately following the ceremony. Following a southern wedding trip the couple will reside at Shreveport, La. For traveling the bride was attired in a luggage tan suit with luggage and white accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and Ohio State University. She received her B. A. and B. S. degrees from Ohio State. She is also a graduate of the American Conservatory of Music in Fountainebleau, France. She has been employed at the Johnny Appleseed Junior high school. Mr. Lisle is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high and Ohio State university, where he received his degree in Chemical Engineering. He is a member of Scabbard and Blade and Tau Beta Pi fraternity. He is now adjutant general in the air crops with the U. S. Army at the Basic Flying school.

Out-of-town guests in attendance at the wedding were Miss Ruth Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Geren, Miss Helen, Ruth and Catherine Geren, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Seybold, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Truxall, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Truxall, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Lisle, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Price, Columbue, Miss Zanta Finefrock, Covington, O., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin, Osborn, O., Rev. E. F. C. Stahl, Newark, O., Mrs. Jean Goddard and William Feldman, Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Drake, Canton, O., Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hurst, Alliance, O., Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cochran, Richwood, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Mabee, Cleveland.

Mate Seems Fascinated With Another

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Sometime ago I found out the cause of my husband's indifference around the home, but I'm trying my level best to keep this knowledge from him. He thinks I don't know about it. Everything goes wrong at home. The children get on his nerves; my presence seems to irritate him; he is grouchy and discontented. He has, however, no grounds for divorce.

There's another woman in his life, and she seems able to make him happy. If only he would talk to me about it we might find a way out of it. I'd even give him up if it would make him happier. I'd just like to see him smile again. After all, life is short, and without love it isn't worth while. I still love him very much, and the situation is terribly hard on me. Would you advise silence and patience?

SORROWFUL WIFE.

How a man blessed with a wife who can write as affectionately and unselfishly as you do about a philandering husband can be so indifferent is a mystery to me. But when men no longer in their first youth forget their wives, homes and children, in a mad pursuit of something they think will bring them happiness, they aren't quite sane.

Sometimes they see the folly of throwing aside everything for what too often proves to be only a case of fascination, and they come back like little boys who have been almost drowned while taking a forbidden swim.

Then, again, they keep on with a new love to the exclusion of children, home, duty, and everything else and are selfishly happy.

You have children who require a home and their father's protection, and there are no grounds for divorce. Better not walk out for the "other woman," no matter how self-sacrificing you may feel. Your children are your first consideration. My advice would be to wait.

Parents Object.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl is 17 years old and I am 21. We've known each other for three years, and for two of them have gone steady. Her family always rather liked me, and never said a word about our going together. But all of a sudden they're objecting, and now her father won't even let me come to the house.

We are very much in love and have been meeting on the sly. I can't understand why they should make a fuss all of a sudden, when we've been good friends so long.

ROBERT.

You haven't given me any reason for the family taboo. Perhaps they think you are too young, or that you wouldn't be able to support a wife. Why not ask the girl's family what it's all about?

I don't approve of sneaking; it isn't good for character. The whole family will think more of you if you talk it over with the parents, and don't try to meet the girl on the sly.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHADES OF DIFFERENCE

When your partner bids a second suit, and you then shift to his higher-ranking initially-shown suit, you are not necessarily encouraging him to go on. You are merely telling him that you prefer that suit to his second suit. And, if it is a major which you did not support on your first turn, he will read your shift as showing probably only three cards of it. If you wish to encourage him to go farther, you must bid one more than the minimum amount necessary to shift. That is not a force. It merely indicates you think you are strong enough to raise him, after hearing him rebid.

South Hands	North Hands
1. ♠ A 8 6 4 2	1. ♠ K 7 3
♥ A Q 5 4	♥ 6 2
♦ 6 5	♦ 8 7 4
♣ 8 3	♣ K Q 9 5 4
2. ♠ A Q 6 4 2	2. ♠ K 10 3
♥ A Q 5 4	♥ 6 2
♦ 6 5	♦ 8 7 4
♣ 8 3	♣ A Q J 5 4

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	(?)

With that bidding, and the No. 1 hands opposite each other, North's best bid on his second turn in a mere preference of 2-Spades and West should pass, having a virtually minimum hand. The side probably will make two or three-odd, but not a game.

With South No. 1 and North No. 2, North has just about enough extra strength to bid 3-Spades on his second turn, but West should pass that, as the chance of game is too remote, too many things having to work just right.

With South No. 2 and North No. 1, North will bid only 2-Spades on his second turn, and South should pass, as game is too far away. Make South about a K stronger, and he would be justified in trying 3-Spades to see if North wanted to squeeze the rest of the way, which he should not.

With South No. 2 and North No. 2, North should bid 3-Spades on his second turn, and South would have just about enough then to try for game at 4-Spades. Any one of several breaks would be enough to produce a game for the side.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

There was that in Nancy Carew's voice which made me "sit up and take notice." Her words, however, carried no new significance to me. I had known from the minute she first spoke to me alone that she had a message concerning Mary to give me, and I had guessed that it concerned Stephen Redfield's flaunting flirtation with the beautiful Veritzen star.

Shares Olga's Fears.

But I sub-consciously had put it into the same category as Olga's warning to me; a recital of fears for the marital happiness of Noel and Mary, fears which I shared, but which I believed I could banish when I should have the chance to take up the problem they presented.

Had I been mistaken in my appraisal of the importance of the thing which the old actress was waiting to tell me? An agitated undertone in her still melodious voice flashed that warning to my intuition, and as I sat down opposite to her, I felt almost as if something sinister, menacing, was hovering in the air between us.

Nancy's Eyes Troubled.

"And I am ready to hear you," I told her, and I leaned toward her with my hands upon the arms of my chair, that I might not betray their trembling.

Her eyes, troubled yet resolute, met mine.

"I wish I didn't have to tell you this," she said. "It isn't a very nice thing to blacken the name of a person closely associated with one professionally, yet for Mary's sake I must speak. I dare not keep quiet."

The psychic sense of menace quickened, but I made my voice and words encouraging.

"You know, I trust, that anything you say to me will be kept locked behind my lips," I told her.

She looked at me oddly.

"Of course I know that," she said, "without any words of explanation. But — suppose I were to tell you that you might find it your public duty to repeat what I am going to tell you; repeat it where it might mean the loss of a career, and even more, to the person concerned."

Madge Is Bewildered.

She had succeeded in bewildering me completely. Was her mind wandering, or was mine, I asked myself. But aloud, I only repeated dazedly:

"My public duty?"

Her eyes were suddenly sharp, and despite her solemnity, I saw a glint of mirth in them.

"No, I am not headed for Bellevue," she said, "although you may think I am before I get through. But there's no use jumping into the middle of things. I'll go back to the beginning."

She paused, then framed a question with her eyes even as it left her lips.

"Do you remember that rehearsal of your play at the farmhouse?" she queried, "the one where Philip surprised us all by giving the star role to Mary unconditionally, and admitting that he had been only trying her mettle by the grueling tests which he had given her?'

A Vivid Memory.

"Do I remember that rehearsal?" I countered. "Indeed I do. In fact it is one of the most vivid memory pictures in all my gallery."

I spoke only the truth, for never, as long as life should be left me, would I forget that hour when Mary's marvelous performance of her role, in spite of the Damoclean sword of Philip Veritzen's apparent disapproval suspended above her hapless head, had thrilled those who listened to her, with the recognition that a potentially great stage artist was coming out of her chrysalis.

We had received a greater thrill for Philip Veritzen, in a scene as dramatic as he ever had staged, had admitted, almost smugly, that he had known all along of the secret grooming I was giving Mary, and had counted upon it to counteract the treacherous training he had given her, in order to test her mental and spiritual ability to be a "trouper."

Hailed as a Star.

He had then confirmed her in her role, hailed her as a worthy successor to the long line of Veritzen stars, and relegated Olina, the trouble-maker, to the innocuous role of a stepsister to his son Noel, Mary's husband, by the announcement of his own forthcoming marriage to Olina's mother, Olga, exiled queen of Transvania.

Nancy Carew brought me out of my memory reverie with another question.

"Do you remember what I told you about Stephen Redfield that day?" she asked.

Simple Meals Give Days Off For Housewife

By BETSY NEWMAN

If you are the wife, mother and cook in your family, plan to have a day off as well as the other workers in the home. You can, by careful planning. Serve simple meals that take little time to prepare.

Today's Menu.

Flank Steak Fillets
Potatoes Boiled in Jackets
Creamed Peas—Cooked Day Before, Creamed for Meal
Lettuce with French Dressing
Maple Charlotte or Chilled Fruits
Wafers or Cookies Coffee

* * *

Flank Steak Fillets.

1 flank steak
2 cups bread crumbs
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons butter
Little sage or poultry seasoning.

Wipe meat with dampened cloth and rub on both sides with salt and pepper. Make bread dressing by preparing crumbs. Saute onion and celery in melted butter for 5 minutes. Stir into crumbs and add seasoning; moisten with boiling water or milk, and spread over steak. Roll as jelly roll and put in skewers or tie it several places to hold in shape. Cut in slices, allowing 1 slice to each serving. These may be prepared on Saturday and the slices may be browned on both sides then, and left in pan to be cooked on Sunday. After browning, add ½ cup water, cover and simmer slowly on top of stove or put into a moderate oven to cook for 1 hour or until tender.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, July 15.

Judging by the lunar transits most powerful on this day the emphasis may be placed on personal matters, domestic, artistic, social and affectional. In the latter particularly there may be much activity and excitement, with indications of courtship, marriage or other romantic attachments. The finances are also under promise of increase and expansion, with friendly interest assisting toward this end. There may be trivial delays or anxieties, but above all there should be success and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year of steady success and happiness, with all things under expansive and gratifying rule. Finances may be enhanced, promotion and security stabilized, but the main adventure should be in the domain of the romantic, social, domestic, artistic and other forms of private joys and gratifications. Engagements, and marriage, are all fostered by the predominant planetary vibration. It is a time to seek these.

A child born on this day should have many artistic and cultural as well as social talents and graces. It should have an exceptionally happy and successful career, with much prestige and popularity.

CHAPTER VII

Doris did not hear from Jimmy Allen, nor did she see George Malone. The episodes on the ship seemed unrealities of long ago.

"Maybe I was taking the whole thing too seriously," Doris told Miss Pringle as she dressed to go out with Ricardo.

"Doesn't Ricardo have something to do with your change of heart?"

Doris laughed as she slipped on the white chiffon. "He's been wonderful to me," she admitted, "and he's shown me an entirely different point of view."

Miss Pringle looked up from the letter she was writing. A faint breeze stirred the draperies and the odor of jasmine stole into the room like magic incense.

"This is a romantic country," she remarked. "Don't let it go to your head."

"Warning me again?" Doris smiled.

She pinned up the last golden curl and arranged Ricardo's flowers in her hair. "We're just friends," she said carelessly.

"Would you want to marry him?" Miss Pringle persisted.

"I don't think he has any intention of asking me."

"That's where you're wrong. A man like Ricardo Torres doesn't waste his time."

"He's helped me to forget Jimmy," Doris said seriously. "What's the use of loving a man who has no use for you?"

"Just be careful that you don't become too involved. It's so easy to imagine yourself in love on the rebound."

"I don't love Ricardo, if that's what you mean."

* * *

She was thinking of Miss Pringle's words as she left the hotel with him that night. Was he in love with her, or did she just imagine that suddenly his manner seemed more personal?

"You should always wear white," he said softly, and his glance spoke more than a thousand words.

They drove through the sultry night to a cafe high above Rio. It was the most elegant place to which he had taken her. Magnificent crystal chandeliers hung from the ceiling, and from the floor-length windows they could see the breathtaking view below. The atmosphere was formal, but intimate.

Ricardo ordered dinner and suggested that they dance.

"In a few days I will be leaving for Buenos Aires," he said. "You must go to."

"I don't know what Miss Pringle has planned.

"Miss Pringle?"

"Of course. I couldn't go with you alone."

He sighed. "Ah, well . . ."

They walked out upon the small balcony to gaze into the rich, sweet tropical night.

"You are very beautiful," Ricardo said, and drawing her quickly into his arms, he kissed her.

She did not have time to be surprised, nor was she displeased.

"You are not angry," he said with satisfaction.

"No," Doris replied, but in her heart she was thinking of another man's kiss. A kiss that had made all life seem different. A kiss that meant so much to her, and so little, apparently, to Jimmy Allen! Ashamed of her thoughts, she turned away.

He misunderstood the gesture. Putting a hand beneath her chin, he looked deeply into her eyes. "You will go to Bneuos Aires with me," he said softly. "We can be married at once."

* * *

In spite of Miss Pringle's prediction of the proposal, Doris was surprised. The actual reality of his words shocked her. Marry him? Marry Ricardo Torres? When only a moment ago the thought of another man had burned into her heart?

"I know that you do not love me," Ricardo said, dropping her hand.

"That's true," Doris admitted, "and you yourself said that love was the most important issue."

"It is, darling," he said tenderly, "but you will love me. I am sure of it. I will teach you what love can be."

Here on the balcony in the heart of South America it seemed logical. Logical to marry a foreign man, to marry him without even returning to the United States. But to marry him without love was something quite different. And to marry him loving another man was even worse.

"It wouldn't be fair," Doris said, as she had once said to Roy Johnston. Strange how she could have married two men, and yet never the one she wanted.

"I will accept the risk," Ricardo said lightly. "I am a man of the world, Doris. You know nothing of love. But I will show you. You will be happy in Argentina. You belong there."

Could she do it? For one perilous moment Doris hesitated. Perhaps he was right. Perhaps Jimmy Allen had not been her true love. Maybe Ricardo could give her a new life, a new chance.

"You will think it over," Ricardo instructed. "You need not give me your answer now."

"I admire you very much," Doris said earnestly.

He smiled. "Come, darling. We will go inside."

How kind he was! How understanding and patient! Never had Doris felt a greater tenderness for him than she did now.

Back at the table, he amused her with stories of his country. His conversation was always interesting, sparkling. Life as his wife would never be boring. With a little thrill of excitement Doris imagined herself living in Argentina, learning Spanish. Being Mrs. Ricardo Torres.

He sensed her mood. "We will have a house and a garden in Belgrano, the most beautiful section of Buenos Aires. And in the summertime I will take you to the seashore. I am a writer and my time is my own. You would never be lonely with me, darling."

Never be lonely! Her mind went back drearily over the last few years of her life. Struggling, desperate years. With Ricardo she would be sheltered and protected. He knew that she did not love him, yet he was willing to take a chance. Would it be wrong?

He smiled. "This music is so beautiful. Shall we dance?"

* * *

She shut her eyes and gave herself up to the spirit of the tango. Here was a chance for a life sweetly secure, interesting, exciting. A life that many girls would accept without hesitation. But had she the courage to marry a man of foreign birth and blood?

"Wait until you see Argentina," Ricardo whispered. "You will be enchanted. You will feel at home there."

At home? But how could one feel at home in a country so far away?

She looked up at him wistfully. "I can't promise now."

"As you wish, darling. There is plenty of time."

Doris told herself that she would think it over from every angle. That she would be absolutely fair in her decision. But scarcely had her resolution been made before it was to be broken, for ssuddenly over Ricardo's shoulder she saw Jimmy Allen.

"Oh!" she gasped.

Jimmy! Tall, laughing, with a handsome red-haired girl who clung possessively to his arm.

Ricardo felt her stiffen. "Is anything wrong?"

"Let's go back to the table," Doris begged.

Braves Stretch Win Streak to 4 Games, Meet Pandas

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The old boys of 1908, forerunners of the Mansfield High Tyger gridmen of today, called signals and ran through plays yesterday just like the 50-year-old youngsters they are.

Meeting at Frank Cave's farm near Ontario for their first reunion and picnic in 33 years, the old boys lost little time in recalling memories of the days when they brought football back to Mansfield high school after the game had been dropped for several years.

So well did that team of 1908 restore the pigskin pastime that it has been a big part of the school calendar ever since.

On their record of a defeat in the opening game, a tie in the second tilt, and nine straight victories for a total score of 171 to 30 for the opposition, they gave the game a sturdy foundation for the great Mansfield High teams that were to follow.

* * *

And in the rugged, battering, bruising grid game of that era they gave themselves a good foundation for the battle of life. Every member of that 1908 squad is still living, and most of them were present for the picnic.

* * *

The reunion started calmly enough as the staid business men, manufacturers, attorneys and civic leaders of 1941 found themselves tangled up in the polite conversation of this modern day world.

But soon it was "Hi Pickles," and "Hi Jim, and Bill and Pete and Pooch," and the other names they knew back there in 1908.

And the dignity of their years fell off to the thud of a booted football banged back and forth across the yard of the Cave home.

"I remember," said Bill Black, Mansfield attorney," that I played every minute of every one of those 11 games back in 1908. It was a tough game, but a guy was considered a sissy if he had to be taken out of the lineup.

"We wore all the padding we could get, most of it made by ourselves or our mothers. We needed padding the way they played football in those days."

But when the team lined up yesterday for signal practice, Black had forgotten on which side of the line he played. "I was on this side," he maintained. "No you weren't, you were over here," his ten teammates argued.

* * *

A. A. Hecht, who arrived too late for the picture of the team you'll find at the top of this page, claimed the record for travelling the longest distance to attend the reunion, all the way from Tucson, Ariz.

Hecht is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hecht, sr., 39 Penn avenue.

SPECIAL BULLETIN FOR EAST SIDERS: Johnny Boutz jr. got home all right. This morning.

The east siders were worried about Johnny. He went with Jake Miller's party of 13 to the double header between the Indians and Red Sox at Cleveland yesterday.

Thirteen went to Cleveland, but it must have been an unlucky number. Only 12 came back. Johnny got lost in the shuffle of the big crowd at Cleveland stadium, and had to wait for a bus this morning.

Gehringer Replaced In Tiger Infield

DETROIT — (INS) — Charley Gehringer, one of baseball's greatest second basemen, yielded to youth today as Detroit Tiger officials announced he will be replaced as a regular infielder by Lambert Meyer, recalled from Buffalo.

* * *

After 17 brilliant years with the Tigers, Gehringer goes to the bench to await occasional call as a utility infielder. The veteran second baseman was named the league's most valuable player in 1937, and was selected on six all-star teams.

* * *

Gehringer established a record in 1929 when he made 11 putouts in one game. In 1937 he led the league batting with a brisk .371. Until last year, Gehringer had batted at least .300 every season except for 1932 when he slipped to .298.

Queen "Takes It Easy"

THELMA LINSTER

Mansfield's woman champion of Ohio public golf links is seen here "taking it easy" on the golf course, just as she "took it easy" yesterday in defending her title at Columbus Twin Rivers course by an 11-stroke margin over a field of 38 contestants.

* * * * *

Thelma Linster Wins Her Second Ohio Golf Crown

Mansfield's Thelma Linster is still queen of Ohio's public golf courses today, and owner for a year of the Governor's Cup presented to her yesterday by Governor John W. Bricker at Twin Rivers course in Columbus.

Defending the championship she won last year at Akron, Thelma coasted to an easy 11-stroke victory over the field of 38 feminine mashie swingers who toured the Twin Rivers layout on the second day of their third state tournament.

* * *

Holding a 10-stroke lead on her course record breaking score of 37-37—74 posted on Saturday, the Mansfield champion was content to protect her margin Sunday as she turned in a card of 83 for a total of 157.

Even though she was nine over women's par for the second 18 holes, she picked up another stroke on her nearest rival, Mrs. Emma Wolfe of Youngstown, who had 85-83-168.

The Governor's Cup, presented in person by Ohio's chief executive, becomes the permanent possession of the first woman winning the tournament three times. And Thelma expects to return next summer for her third title.

* * *

In the men's public links tournament at Dublin-Arlington course, Columbus, Joe Mayer was the only Mansfielder to finish in the first 18 who became eligible for the Ohio Amateur tourney this week at Toledo.

* * *

Joe had a 72-hole total of 298 for fourth place, turning in a 77-73 yesterday to add to his 148 of Saturday.

* * *

Other Sunday scores and 72 hole totals of Mansfield shot makers were: Al Hager 75-83—316; Joe Kasper 85-85—333; Pete Linster 86-84—336; Vin Malaska 79-87—329; Vin Tipul 83-79—322; Carl Wiseman 84-83—334, and Pete Zeides 78-93—340.

Ontario Cops Ninth Win

Defeats Shiloh Lions In Twelfth Start.

The Ontario ball club hung up its ninth win in 12 starts yesterday at Shiloh as the Shiloh Lions bowed before the visitors, 9-3.

* * *

Dawson started on the mound for Ontario, giving up five hits in five innings. Petie Beer then took over the pitching duties and the home club down with three hits in the remaining four innings.

* * *

Miller and Bogantz lashed out homers for Ontario while R. Hamman connected for three out of four. Remy led the Lion's attack with three out of four.

Outhit Visitors But Lose Tilt 4-0

The Plymouth Locomotives outhit the visiting Wadsworth nine in a game at Plymouth yesterday but wound up on the short end of a 4-0 score.

Wadsworth pushed across a lone marker in the sixth and came on to put the game away with a three run rally in the ninth.

Kyler led the Locomotive batsmen with two of the club's seven bingles. Baughman made two out of four chances to spark the visitors winning five hit attack.

Champion Gives Shooting Lessons

Grant Ilseng, who placed on both the All-American Skeet and Trap-Shooting teams, will be at Montgomery-Wards Friday from 12 to 12:30 p. m. to demonstrate and solve shooting problems of the sport.

Ilseng will also be at North Lake Park to give free demonstrations and lessons from 3 to 5 p. m. He will appear at a meeting of the Wildlife conservation league at Willard later Friday evening.

Papa Jeff Heath Hits For Tribe

Leads Indian Attack That Nets Two Games.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The Cleveland Indians waded into the toughest two weeks of their American league schedule today with two hard-earned victories at their back.

* * *

Boston fell twice yesterday before 33,565 at the stadium, 9 to 6 and 2 to 1, but the Redskins still remained five games behind New York because the Yanks also won two.

Bob Feller shoots at his 18th victory today against the Red Sox, with the invaders nominating Jack Wilson.

In the coming 14 days the Tribe meets Boston five times, including today's tussle, and tangles with New York in six engagements. Three battles with Washington are sandwiched between the New York contests.

Jeff Heath, who became the father of an eight-pound boy during the first game of the double bill, celebrated by leading the Cleveland attack against Boston with five hits that drove in six runs.

His sharp single to left plated Ken Keltner along with the winning run in the 11th inning of the nightcap to give Al Smith his sixth decision of the year.

Jim Bagby hurled Cleveland to its triumph in the opener with a 12-hit performance. The Indians shelled Charlie Wagner from the mound in the first inning and picked up six more runs off Mike Ryba over the rest of the route.

For the benefit of those folks who think baseball's second name is DiMaggio — and vice versa — this is as good a time as any to point out that pitchers really still are of some use in the game beside helping to keep up a club's intake average at mealtime.

Of course, none of 'em look any good when Joe is waving his war club at them these days. Ted Lyons and Lefty Thornton Lee of the Chicago White Sox are the latest to join Joe's personal "serve-it-up-and-duck" department. The big guy connected safely off each of them yesterday, as the dizzling Yankees swept a twin bill, to run his all-time record for hitting to 53 consecutive contests.

But, Sunday was by far the best day for twirlers the big leagues have seen this season.

In the 15 tilts on the big-league card, three tossers served shutouts, three more gave up only one run. Believe it or not, even Cleveland didn't need Bob Feller to win a pair from Boston; the Yanks clicked mostly because of their pitching and Elmer Riddle remained just that to National league batters.

Claude Passeau, who labors for the Chicago Cubs, threw a neat six-hitter at the Brooklyns in the opener of a twin bill, and, what with the backing of a 16-hit attack, took a 10-3 victory. In the afterpiece, young Newt Kimball, starting his first encounter of the year, clouted the Cubs with a six-hitter for a 3-1 victory.

This split enabled the Cards to pick up a full game by flailing the Phillies twice. Lon Warneke's eight-hitter produced a 7-2 win in the opener, while Bill Crouch came up with a sparkling four-inning relief job to save an 8-5 decision in the second act.

It's a toss-up between Red Ruffing and Ken Heintzelman for the best pitching performance of the day. Rufus the Red went to work in the nightcap for the Yanks, had a no-hitter going into the eighth inning and wound up with a 1-0 three-hit win in 11 innings for his tenth victory of the year. In the opener, Spud Chandler pitched five-hit ball to win his first victory of the campaign, 8-1.

* * *

Heintzelman discovered a new branch of his family in the New York Giants lineup. They were all his cousins as he hurled two-hit ball, allowed only one man to get as far as second and tossed the Pirates to a 4-0 picnic. This boosted the Bucs' winning streak to seven straight, but it ended there as Bill Terry's Terriers came back to take the nightcap, 8-2, behind Hal Schumacher's five-hit hurling.

* * *

As usual, opposing batsmen couldn't solve the Riddle from Cincinnati and unbeaten Elmer posted his tenth straight win by blanking the Boston Braves with five hits for a 4-0 Red victory. Manny Salvo and Tom Earley beat Paul Derringer, 6-5, in the second game.

* * *

Even old Jack Knott, who sits down to table with the Philadelphia Athletics these days, was in the parade. Turning in his fourth win in his past five starts, he downed the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, with five hits, despite two homers by Pinky Higgins.

Washington walloped St. Louis, 6-3 and 6-5, as a quartet of Nat pitchers allowed only 13 hits through the 18 innings.

Old Timers Line Up For Signal Practice

Mansfield High school football team of 1908, grown a bit grey and paunchy at 50, showed all the fire of youth yesterday as they lined up and went through signal drills and plays of the era of the flying wedge. They were meeting for their first reunion in 33 years at Frank Cave's farm near Ontario. Left to right they are: Ed Longsdorf, re, Raymond Lantz, rt, Walter Oswalt, rg, Bill Black, extra rg, Jim Carrigan, center and captain, Albert Schad, lg, Frank Cave, lt, and Roger Au, le. In the backfield are Norm Stoodt, rh, Earl Pollock, qb, Pete Runyan, fb, and Dio Shaw, lh.

State Tourney Gets Underway

Defending Champ Servis Favored to Repeat.

TOLEDO, O. — (INS) — Boasting the greatest array of talent since the tournament began in 1904, the annual Ohio state golf championship began today with golfers competing in preliminary pro-amateur and best-ball contests over the tough Inverness course. The 18-hole qualifier will be held tomorrow, with 64 to qualify, and closes with a 36-hole match on Saturday.

Defending champion, Bobby Servis, 24-year-old Daytonian who has held the title for the past four years, is again the heavy favorite provided he can leave his restaurant business for the tournament.

* * *

Another top flighter, who also may be absent again this year, because of business ties, is three-time champion Maurice J. McCarthy, Cincinnati veteran.

Nevertheless, the large entry list is well-stocked with par busters and rising stars.

Two Toledo challengers, Frank Stranahan, 18-year-old sharpshooter who recently captured both the trans-Mississippi and the Arizona state titles, and Marshall Carlson, who was defeated by Servis in last year's finals, 3 and 2, will be on hand.

Another formidable contender is Bob Castor of Ashland Country club who was recently nosed out of the 1941 Akron open title in a strong pro field.

Cleveland has an array of six entrees including Tom Whiteway and Eddie Meister, district champion.

Other mashie wielders expected to tee off today are Bobby Campbell, 17-year-old threat from Granville, who got as far as the semi-finals last year; Pete Sohl, 17, Columbus' state interscholastic champion; Dick Barr, 18-year-old Ohio junior runnerup, also from Columbus; Billy Gilbert, 1940 Western conference champion from Cincinnati; Danny Carmichael, jr., Columbus, who has reached the quarter-finals in the state meet on four occasions, and Carlin Short, Akron district winner.

PERRY BEATS TILDEN

AKRON—(INS)—Fred Perry and Karel Kozeluh today held victories over Bill Tilden and Vincent Richards in both singles and doubles matches played yesterday at the Portage Country club. Perry rallied to whip Tilden 6-3, 6-2 while Kozeluh defeated Richards 7-6, 5-1. The victors then teamed to down Richards and Tilden, 7-5, 7-5.

Ghezzi Takes P. G. A. Crown

Defeats Byron Nelson In Strange Overtime Play.

By STEVE SNIDER

DENVER—(U.P.)—Vic Ghezzi, the guy they called a morning glory, brought a quick end today to a dispute over the 38th hole on which he won the Professional Golfers Association championship from Byron Nelson in a gruelling title match at Cherry Hills.

* * *

"We made up our own rules," Ghezzi said. "Maybe what we did isn't in the P. G. A. rule books, but it was good enough for Nelson and me."

* * *

What did happen never before has come up in a P. G. A. tournament. For a hectic few moments—as a gallery of 5,000 pressed around the 38th green—it appeared Ghezzi had won the title on a foul from a man who still is regarded among men who make their living from golf as the greatest match player in the game. Actually, Ghezzi did win the championship when Nelson blew a putt of two and a half feet under the severest sort of pressure.

Here it was at 4:50 p. m. Sunday, Mountain Standard Time:

Ghezzi, notorious for folding up under pressure, just had rallied to win three holes from Nelson and headed into an overtime match. As they approached the 38th green all even, Ghezzi chipped his ball two and a half feet from the pin, slightly to the right and Nelson followed with an approach the same distance from the cup to the left of Ghezzi's ball. The two were not more than a foot apart.

* * *

Golf rules stipulate that the man farthest from the hole putts first and Nelson carefully measured the distance by every available means. Failing to determine the honor by measurement, Nelson tossed a coin and, winning the toss, decided to hole out first. As he addressed the ball his foot touched Ghezzi's ball and under the match play code the match was forfeited to Ghezzi.

* * *

"There was no argument about that between us," Ghezzi said. "I told Byron before he went over to his ball to move mine and mark the spot if it was in his way. When he touched it with his foot, he proved it was in the way, that's all."

* * *

Nelson and Ghezzi took it in stride, but tournament officials were prepared to bring the match to an embarrassing end if Ghezzi had protested. As it is, Ghezzi still remains as the only man ever to win the P. G. A. title twice on the same day. After a hurried huddle by tournament officials, the scorer agreed to move Ghezzi's ball, call off the disqualification which appeared to be in order and permitted Nelson to putt.

* * *

He missed, Ghezzi didn't, and the match was over.

By his victory, Ghezzi, a 29-year-old Italian who got his start under U. S. Open Champion Craig Wood at Deal, N. J., boosted his winnings to $3,100 for the year. The P. G. A. title is worth $1,100.

TAKES TROPHY

LORAIN —(INS)— Bob Kromer, at the helm of Restless, today held the Dusendon trophy for Comet boats at the Lorain club regatta. Over a rough and choppy Lake Erie, which forced club officials to postpone the feature and numerous other events, Kromer led his ship to victory over 14 entries.

Patterson Subdues Mud Hens

Ladies' Night Booked For Panda Fracas.

RIDING along on a four-game winning streak, the Mansfield Braves meet the Lima Pandas tonight at the Fairground in an effort to make it five in a row for the ladies night crowd that'll be on hand.

With Pat Patterson on the hill, the Braves subdued the downtrodden Tiffin Mud Hens yesterday on the home lot 6 to 4, by chalking up a run in each of the first three frames and managing to stay just a little bit ahead all the way.

* * *

Pat, who was scheduled to hurl Friday night's game at the home yard which was rained out at the last moment, apparently wasn't at his peak after the two days of extra rest, and had trouble making his curve perform its usual antics.

* *

He was just a bit shaky all the way, but he got better as the game progressed, and reached top stride in the ninth when he set down Weigle and Gerlach on strikes and forced Campau to bound into an easy out down the third base line.

In the meantime the Braves found nothing too puzzling in the delivery of young Tim Warner of the Hens, and kept pecking away at his offerings in consistent style.

Bobby Ankrum led off with a single in the opening stanza and tallied on Tim Mangan's single. In the second, with two down, Bill Reinka drew a pass and made the circuit on singles by Bill Salem and Patterson. And in the third Bobby TeStruth, making his first appearance in a Braves' uniform in nearly six weeks, was hit by a pitched ball, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Eddie Mutryn's single.

The Hens got two runs in the third when Weigle doubled with two away and came home on Gerlach's single to left. Reinka's throw home had Weigle beaten easily, but Umpire Karns called the Hen safe even though Mangan had him blocked off. Campau singled, and Patterson lost contrd to walk Boone and Taylor forcing in the second run.

* * *

The Braves came through with two more runs, and incidentally the winning marker, in the fifth. TeStruth was safe on Amidie's error and Mangan and Mutryn singled.

Tiffin responded with a run in the sixth on Manager Harry Taylor's blast over the right field fence, and another in the seventh on walks to Weigle and Gerlach and a single by Taylor.

That ended the scoring for the visitors, but the Braves still had a run coming in their half of the seventh on a walk to Mangan with two out, and a double by Mutryn.

CRASH FATAL TO MANSFIELDER AS TOLL INCREASES

Lutz Launches Investigation In Deaths of Cleveland Woman, Shelby Man.

home of Mrs. Ethel Couter, who summoned S. Bumtus, Knox county deputy sheriff. The body was removed to the Meredith funeral home in Fredericktown and later taken to the Geiger funeral home here.

Bumtus said that Nagle was pinned beneath his auto when it overturned. The car crashed on a curve after crossing a small bridge. Bumtus placed the time of the crash at about 9:30 p. m.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. from the home and at 9:30 a. m. from St. Peter's Catholic church where a requiem mass will be celebrated by Msgr. R. C. Goebel. Burial will be in Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

Born in Mansfield, Nagle graduated from St. Peter's parochial schools in 1936. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel N. Nagle, sr., a sister, Mrs. R. R. Bunting, and a brother, Jacob Nagle, all of Mansfield.

Funeral services for Mr. Bricker, 37, lifelong resident of Jackson township, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Barkdull funeral home with Rev. D. B. Young, pastor of First Lutheran church, Shelby, officiating. Burial will be made in Oakland cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Bricker, who was a member of Knights of Pythias lodge at Shelby, are his wife, Mabel, and son, Russell, who are reported in an improved condition at Memorial hospital with injuries received in the same accident; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bricker of near Shelby.

Mrs. Bricker still remains in a serious condition at the hospital with a fractured skull, broken left arm and multiple lacerations, but her condition has improved, hospital attaches reported today. Her son received a fractured collar-bone, and numerous bruises and lacerations.

Seven other persons were injured in traffic accidents in the Mansfield area.

Mrs. Edgar Calkins, Mt. Vernon R. D. 2, was undergoing treatment at Mercy hospital in Mt. Vernon today following an accident last night three and a half miles north of Fredericktown on state route 13 in which a car driven by her husband was struck by another car driven by William Henry Campbell of 307 Locuse street, Mt. Vernon.

Miss Marion Booth, 17, Mt. Vernon, lost several teeth and suffered bruises and lacerations yesterday when the car in which she was riding collided with another near Orchard park. Waldo Meeks, 17, Butler, R. D. 2, driver of the car in which she was riding, and Mildred Carter, 40, driver of the other auto, were uninjured.

In a minor accident in Mansfield, Wilbur W. Groscost of 342 Glessner avenue, driver, and Miss Sadie Robertson, 136 Greenwood avenue, suffered cuts and bruises, when their car crashed into a utility pole at Marion avenue and Carpenter road yesterday at 5 a. m.

Groscost told police he swerved to avoid hitting another car and run over the curb into the pole. The pole was knocked over in the accident.

Delbert Williams, 17, of Bucyrus, was treated at Bucyrus City hospital for a possible skull fracture, and internal injuries as well as a fractured left arm and cuts and bruises when a car in which he was riding overturned as a result of a tire-blowout on route 30-N, two miles west of Bucyrus late Saturday.

Treated for cuts and bruises sustained in the same accident were Robert Steman, 18, of Elito, O., and William Miller, 14, of Nevada.

Everett Steman, 19, brother of Robert, and driver of the car, was uninjured.

Harold Fritz, 41, R. D. 2, Nevada, was treated at Bucyrus City hospital for lacerations of the left hand and wrist suffered when his car crashed after he was unable to negotiate a turn from a county road onto route 30-N, west of Bucyrus.

Thirteen other persons killed in traffic accidents throughout the state include:

Columbus—Laverne C. March, 35-year-old policeman, killed when plane crashed near Columbus.

Stenbenville — Alex Buck, 69, died at nearby Glen Robbins after an auto accident.

Victims of a crash at Lacarne Station near Port Clinton were Charles E. Daniels, David A. Ferguson, Cornelius Caldwell, Thomas R. Ellis and Edward Cunings, all of Toledo. They were returning to their homes from an Erie township WPA project when a New York Central train struck their automobile.

Fremont — Ralph E. Beight, about 55, of Dayton, struck by motor car.

New Philadelphia—Leroy McGregor, 40, of nearby Uhrichsville, in crash near Fredonia, N. Y.

Chillicothe—Thomas Wilson, 31, Camp Stony Creek CCC foreman, of collision injuries.

Dayton — Harold L. Sites, 27, and Mrs. Twanda Hammaker, 27, both of Springfield, in Automobile-truck collision.

Newport, Ky. — Harold Leroy Smith, 23, of Cincinnati, in crash against utility pole.

Akron—Larry W. Albertson, 30, of Cleveland, in motor car slip down 500-foot bank; John Sproh, 60, of Warren, struck by car.

FARMERS PLAN MASS PROTEST

Meeting of Richland County Quota Opponents Set For Wednesday Night.

Routzohn, (R.) from Dayton, and Webb Clark, attorneys for the protective association which has formed branches in practically every wheat-growing county in Chio.

In Washington the agriculture department, giving way to a clamor by growers against the 49 cents a bushel penalty has extended to April 30, 1943 the time during which the grain may be stored under government loan.

Growers who take advantage of the extension have three chances to avoid the penalty. They may underplant their acreage allotment next year by the amount of this year's excess; they may count on the lifting of quotas by 1942; or they may suffer a crop loss next year of such magnitude as to offset the excess.

Baker said that the government's new announcement of extension of wheat loans to farmers who wish to store their crop does not affect the issue.

"The mere fact that the government has extended the right of farmers to storage means nothing," Baker stated. "Farmers must have an income and they cannot get money when their wheat lies unused and unsold in storehouses."

He says the only result of the loan limit extension will be to create a scarcity of warehouses to store the grain.

The marketing restrictions which levy a cash penalty upon farmers who sell or feed more than their quotas were approved by wheat farmers in a national referendum last month. Ohio farmers, however, voted against the plan.

Rep. Frederick C. Smith, R., from Marion, told a meeting of Marion county farmers Saturday night that only one farmer in six was permitted to cast a ballot in the referendum on quotas.

Loudonville

The Friendship class of the Baptist Sunday school enjoyed a picnic supper at Camp Mohican State park Wednesday evening.

* * *

Mrs. E. J. Evans and family and Mrs. Robert Hunt spent Wednesday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russell.

* * *

Jane Ann Leber will spend the week-end at a Girl Scout camp in Cleveland.

Miss Emma Halderman, who has spent the past 10 days here with relatives, returned to her home at Dearborn, Mich., Wednesday.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Strang and daughter, Martha, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sullivan of Mansfield visited Sunday the Old Man's cave, Rock House, Cunkle Hollow and Campbell's Cliff near Lancaster.

Mrs. Clarence Crow and daughter, Audrey, of Sewickley, Pa., came Wednesday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Frangkeiser.

Edward Wise of Patterson field, Dayton, O., returned after spending from Friday until Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carson Wise and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Workman will leave today for a visit with relatives in Toledo and attend the wedding of their nephew, Albert Bowman, and Miss Jane Girard. The wedding will take place Saturday morning in the Blessed Sacrament church in that city.

THEATERS

Western Epic.

The natural beauty of the early west is to be seen in the Technicolor production, "Billy the Kid," starring Robert Taylor at the Ohio. Dealing with a youthful adventurer who first joins up with an unscrupulous gang in a cattle war then swings to the side of the persecuted ranchers the picture gives Taylor a hard-riding, fast-shooting role in his first western vehicle. Brian Donlevy, Mary Howard, Ian Hunter and Gene Lockhart are in the cast.

G-Man Thriller.

"The Get-Away," showing at the Madison, presents the adventures of a federal man in tracking down a sinister gang preying on defense industries. A sensational prison break, a raid on a gangster stronghold, and the tracking down of a gangster overlord in a big city furnish excitement throughout the picture. Robert Sterling plays the G-man, and Dan Dailey, jr., the gangster. Others in the cast are Charles Winninger, Donna Reed and Henry O'Neill. "One Night in Lisbon," the companion feature, is a comedy featuring Fred MacMurray as an American war-time flyer who meets romance under fire.

African Carnival.

Bob Hope has the job of a stunt performer in Africa in "Road to Zanzibar," showing at the Ritz, with Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour and Una Merkel in the supporting cast. As half the team of Hope and Crosby he gets shot out of a cannon, is frozen alive and undergoes other hazardous experiences. Dorothy Lamour and Una Merkel are cast as two American girls trying to get through the jungle to Zanzibar where the former has hopes of marrying wealth. The production features some new tunes and is a swiftly paced successor to "Road to Singapore." Robert Livingston is featured in "Prairie Pioneers," the second picture.

Romantic Comedy.

Supported by Fanchot Tone and Robert Benchley, Deanna Durbin plays a grown-up role in "Nice Girl," currently showing at the Park. As a small town miss who becomes involved with a New Yorker, played by Fanchot Tone, Deanna creates all kind of comment in the neighborhood with an innocent escapade. Benchley is cast as Deanna's father. George Sanders is starred for a fifth time in a "Saint" picture in the co-attraction, "The Saint in Palm Springs." Wendy Barrie and Jonathan Hale are in the cast.

England's balloon barrages have proved deadly to migrating birds as well as to airplanes.

Mansfield
Public Parks Association

To the People of Mansfield and Surrounding Communities

The Mansfield Public Parks Association joins you, in pointing with pride to the record established on July Fourth. For the second successive year, we can look back upon a "Fourth" which left in its wake, no trail of blasted eyes, torn limbs, nor lost lives due to the careless and promiscuous use of fireworks. Neither was there an automobile, bicycle or pedestrian accident reported, which caused injury to anyone.

THIS IS A RECORD OF WHICH ALL OF MANSFIELD CAN BE JUSTLY PROUD.

The Association feels that the celebration at the Fairgrounds played no small part in establishing this record. Although the Association took the initiative in promoting the event, many others made possible its fulfillment.

The monies used to finance the affair were donated in most part by the Merchants, Manufacturers, Business Men, Lodges, Clubs and others interested in a safe and sane observance of the day. The manual labor was performed by many civic minded men and women of the community. The County Highway Dept., the City Electrical Dept., the O.P.S., the Park Dept. the Mansfield Baseball Club, the County Commissioners, the Police Dept., the Sheriffs' Office, the Highway Patrol, the Red Cross and the Boy Scouts are but a few of those who did so much to make the affair successful.

To all who in any way participated in staging Mansfield's Annual Fourth of July Celebration, the Public Parks Association is sincerely grateful, and may I add a personal thought? "If one life were saved or one eye saved from blindness, all the hard work and personal sacrifice necessary to stage the event, is as nothing."

NEW PROCESS

GRAND FORKS, N. D.—(U P)—A University of North Dakota scientist has discovered a new process for commercially drying sodium sulfate which may result in a new industry for the state.

The scientist, Dr. Irvin S Lavine, uses lignite coal to derive sodium sulfate, a component in the manufacture of paper and glass War in Europe which cut off importation of the substance from Belgium and Germany, has raised its price on the New York market.

EVEN KEEL CONTINUED BY MARKET

Conflicting War Claims Keep Traders Puzzled and Uninspired.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market generally maintained an even keel today but that was about all that could be said for it. Dealings, quiet at the start, slowed further near the second hour.

Wall Street was unable to find much inspiration in the war news as German-Russian claims seemed to grow more conflicting daily.

Some market encouragement was derived from the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that "mild hysteria which developed last week on the part of many civilian steel users is in large measure unjustified."

The situation of the private consumers, the review added, should become better as various adjustments are made.

Holders of shipbuilding shares were pleased with figures of the American bureau of shipping disclosing 40 new vessels of 326,789 gross tons were completed in the first half of 1941, an increase of nearly 70 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

PARTY DELUXE
Liederkranz Club Fourth and Main, tonight, 8 p m

For four years we have foreseen and forewarned of the inflation now to break over us. We have persistently counselled the adjusting of investment holdings to meet the attack on purchasing power. Cash and high grade bonds are NOT suitable holdings under inflation economy. Adapt yourself to present conditions and survive. As long-term students of this economy, we can, and will, gladly help Livingston, Williams & Co. (Paul F. Cropper), OPS Building, 4171-6.
